Historical Associations:

The Austin Housing Authority was founded in 1937 with the passage of the Housing Act of 1937, which provided federal assistance to local housing authorities. Senator Lyndon Johnson was one of the principal authors of the Housing Act, and the Austin Housing Authority was one of the first three authorities in the country to receive federal funding, beginning the construction of Santa Rita Courts, the nation's first public housing complex, in 1937. Warner

Stewart took over the helm of the Austin Housing Authority in 1946, and continued to build housing for low-income Austinites throughout his career. When the Housing Act of 1954 allowed for the construction of public housing for the elderly, Stewart was at the forefront of providing housing for those in need. At the time of his death in 1961, he was about to get approval for a multi-story housing complex for the elderly in Austin.

Warner Stewart was born in Matagorda, Texas in 1895; his father was a dry goods merchant there. He attended the University of Texas, and was married and living in Austin by 1920, where is listed as living at 1205 San Antonio Street in the census report. He was listed as a civil engineer. He was a partner in the Knight and Stewart Tire Company in the late 1930s, then worked as a city inspector in the 1940s. They purchased this house in 1943 from Virgil P. and Florry Patterson, who were the original owners of the property. Patterson was a bank vice president, who evidently moved to the Amarillo area after selling this property to Warner and Mary Stewart. After returning from World War II, Stewart became the executive director of the Austin Housing Authority, and oversaw the operations of five public housing projects comprising 800 units. During his tenure as executive director, the Austin Housing Authority added to the original Santa Rita Courts, constructed Meadowbrook Homes in South Austin, and Booker T. Washington Terrace in East Austin.

After his death in 1961, his widow Mary remained in the house; she remarried and sold the house in 1973 to William W. Krumpack, who worked for the IRS, and his wife Ann. The Krumpacks lived here for four years, and sold it to Morris and Celeste Stark. Morris Stark was a bank loan officer. Chrys Dougherty and his wife Mary purchased the house in 1982; he was an assistant professor in the LBJ School of Public Affairs. The current owners, Bill Pewitt and Shannon McCann, purchased the house in 1996.

AHA Lists Sites Of New Projects

AF H4510(1)
Austin Housing A
Nov. 1/80

By WRAY WEDDELL

The Austin Housing Authority disclosed Tuesday where it plans to build two new public housing projects, one for Negroes and one for Latin-Americans.

A 60-unit development for Latin-Americans will go up on 4.95 acres immediately west of the present Santa Rita project. It will be an extension of Santa Rita.

The Negro project—300 units—will be built in a triangle between Rosewood Avenue, Webberville Road and Thompson Street. This site is a half mile east of the existing Rosewood project.

The authority's secretary, W. W. Stewart, said the Negro development will be named "Oaklan Homes."

Stewart said options have been secured on "most of the land" needed for the Oaklan development.

The Santa Rita extension will cover 2.62 acres already owned by the AHA. An additional 2.33 acres will be bought.

Sites for the two projects were kept secret until the authority completed the bulk of negotiations for purchase of property. It feared disclosure of the locations would cause a sharp rise in site costs.

The authority is still without a site for a third project—160 units for white tenants. It has asked the City Council to sell rivershore property and is still waiting for an answer.

The AHA wants to buy city-owned land on the north shore of the Colorado River between Comal Street and Chalmers Avenue.

The council has indicated it may balk at this sale of grounds that construction of a housing project there would not clear a blighted area. One member has reminded the authority that the council promised to remove substandard dwellings when new housing development are built. The promise was made, the council spokesman says, last spring when the AHA was given authority to construct 520 additional low-rent government units here.

The authority has taken the position its primary task is not slum clearance but providing housing for low-income families. It has further said that efforts to buy sites where substandard houses would be destroyed have been rejected by the Federal Housing Administration as too costly.

The authority has a federal loan of more than four million dollars for construction of the three projects. It has already received its first loan—$318,000 for purchase of sites, architects fees and site appraisals.

Stewart is aiming as start of construction next year. He hopes to let contracts next spring.

AHA Director Jack Stewart Dies Suddenly

Warren W. (Jack) Stewart, 66, executive director of the Austin Housing Authority, died suddenly Monday, apparent victim of a heart attack.

Stewart died in St. David's Hospital after suffering the attack at his home.

Stewart joined the Austin Housing Authority early in 1946 as executive director, the post he held until his death.

As executive director, Stewart held the chief administrative post of the organization which owns and operated Austin's public housing projects with approximately 850 dwelling units.

A proposed new multi-story apartment project for the elderly had occupied much of Stewart's time in recent months.

He told a reporter recently that it was to be his "last big job"—that he planned to retire soon.

Stewart had been a resident of Austin for 35 years and was a member of St. David's Episcopal Church. He was a veteran of World War I and World War II. He attended the University of Texas where he was a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Survivors are his wife of Austin; one son, Lieutenant Commander William Hart Stewart, Washington, D. C., and one grandchild, Karla TenEyck Stewart, of Austin.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Weed-Corley Funeral Home.

Stewart Rites On Wednesday

Death came Monday to Austin Housing Authority Director Warner W. (Jack) Stewart only days before a City Council hearing on his greatest project — a multi-story apartment building for the needy aged.

Stewart, 66, suffered a heart attack at his home, and died in St. David's Hospital.

The body will remain at Weed-Corley Funeral Home until Wednesday, when it will be taken to St. David's Episcopal Church for services at 10 a.m. The Rev. Charles A. Summers will officiate. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery.

The big apartment project proposed by Stewart is set for a public hearing before the City Council Thursday morning.

Awaiting council action is a cooperative agreement between the city and AHA which would clear the way for the housing authority to arrange financing through the US Public Housing Administration.

Stewart recently told a reporter that this would be his last big project. He planned to retire soon.

Stewart had been AHA's chief administrator since 1946. In that post he oversaw the operations of five public housing developments in Austin totalling more than 800 dwelling units.

Austin was Stewart's home for 35 years. He was a member of St. David's Episcopal Church, and a veteran of both World Wars I and II.

Survivors include his widow; one son, Lieutenant Commander

William Hart Stewart of Washington, D.C.; and one grandchild, Karla Stewart of Austin.
