Additional Backup Information

On October 20, 2011, Council conducted the public hearing and passed the proposed ordinance on first reading to allow the Planning and Development Review Department an opportunity to continue discussions with stakeholders. Follow-up discussions have concluded and resulted in a minor change reflected in the ordinance attached for consideration.

The International Building Code provides a national standard for building construction for commercial structures. The proposed ordinance amends the currently adopted local amendments to provide a technical code path for homeowners to convert a structure to a bed and breakfast for properties existing before to January 1, 2006. This code amendment is not applicable to vacation rental property.

Highlights of the local amendments include the following:

- Identifies who can perform inspections under this code and certification requirements for building inspectors hired by the City of Austin.
- Creates a definition for bed and breakfast.
- Creates an exception in Section 310.1 regarding the requirement for installation of automatic sprinkler systems, specifically for bed and breakfast occupancies on structures built before to January 1, 2006 when no other construction is done and when it complies with all the other requirements. This will allow more flexibility for bed and breakfast occupancies as long as the owner resides in the property and also provides the required automatic smoke detection system in compliance with this section.

These changes in the local amendments have a positive economic impact and no impact on housing affordability.
