Proclamation

Be it known that

Whereas,

The month of April each year is a reminder of the devastation of youth violence that stemmed from the April 20, 1999, Columbine High School massacre that left 17 dead and 23 injured; and,

Whereas,

Since Columbine, there have been 59 recorded school shootings resulting in 152 student deaths, 50 adult and faculty deaths and 154 serious injuries, including the recent Sandy Hook School shootings; and,

Whereas,

The Council on At-Risk Youth (CARY) was established in 1999 and has continuously conducted delinquency and youth violence prevention programs with more than 5,000 high risk youth in AISD; and,

Whereas,

The CARY Board recently reaffirmed its goals of conducting prevention programs, educating the public about youth violence, advocating for government support and striving toward safe schools and safe communities;

Now, Therefore,

I, Lee Jeffingwell, Mayor of the City of Austin, Texas, do hereby proclaim

April, 2013

as

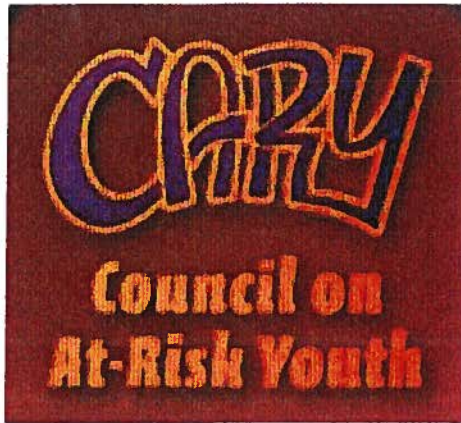

CARY Youth Violence Prevention Month

in Austin.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of Austin to be affixed this 11th Day of April in the Year Two Thousand Thirteen

Katherine S. Newman, is the James B. Knapp Dean of the Krieger School of the Arts and Sciences and Professor of Sociology at Johns Hopkins University. She is the author or co-author of twelve books in fields of urban poverty, public policy, economic mobility, and school violence.

In 2004, Dr. Newman co-authored Rampage: The Social Roots of School Shootings, a landmark study commissioned by the National Research Council. She was recently featured among the experts in a PBS report "Mind of Rampage Killer" on February 21 and has appeared as an authority on ABC News, CNN and PBS.

Her most recent work, The Accordion Family: Boomerang Kids, Anxious Parents and the Private Toll of Global Competition, analyzes the increasing length of time young people are living with their natal families in response to difficulties in the labor market and high housing costs in Western Europe, Japan, and the US.

Previously Dr. Newman was the Malcolm Forbes Class of 1941 Professor of Sociology and Public Affairs and Director of the Institute for International and Regional Studies at Princeton University. She served as the Wiener Professor of Urban Studies and the founding Dean of Social Science at the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study at Harvard University. She was on the faculty of Columbia University for 16 years in the Department of Anthropology.
