

ATX Civic Hacking Events

to the

Austin Community Technology and Telecommunications Commission

8 May 2013

by

David Waldron
St. Edward's University
VP for Information Technology

Chip Rosenthal
Open Austin

- First annual event taking place in over 70 cities across America on June 1 – 2
- Organized in conjunction with Code for America and Random Hacks of Kindness
- White House announced participation as host in March
- Data and challenges provided by NASA, EPA, USDA, Census Bureau, and more
- Austin is proud to join Houston and DFW to represent Texan involvement in this opportunity to cultivate an ecosystem for innovation and change

- June 1 & 2 on St. Edward's University campus
 - Optional social and brainstorm session May 31
- Two full days of challenge generation, design, and development culminating in presentations and subject matter expert feedback
- Seven local start-up and global corporate partners

<http://hackforchange.org/atx-hackathon-change-2013>

bit.ly/ATXhackathon

ATX Civic Tech Expo

- Thursday, May 23
10am – 5pm
City Hall
- Presenting civic tech to the general public
- Hands-on demonstrations of: open data, apps developed by the city, apps developed by the community
- Live one-day civic hackathon
- Partners: Open Austin, City of Austin, Socrata, Austin Free-Net, St. Edwards
- Information at: www.open-austin.org