Old West Austin

PROPOSAL

Construct a one- and two-story addition to the side and rear of the house.

PROJECT SPECIFICATIONS

The applicant proposes to remove non-historic decks and walls from the rear of the house and to construct a new addition that will extend from the side of the house across the back. The proposed addition will have brick veneer and will closely complement the style, massing, and details of the house. The existing house has stone veneer; the addition will be set off from the original part of the house by the change in materials and will be set back from the front of the house so as to not obscure the wonderful round-arched and iron-grilled living room window.

STANDARDS FOR REVIEW

The house is contributing to the Old West Austin National Register Historic District, which has no specific design guidelines for additions. General design principles for historic districts encourage additions to the rear of the house with scale, massing, materials, and fenestration patterns complementing the house and other contributing houses within the district.

RESEARCH

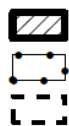

The house was built in 1932 for George Walton Beaver and his wife, Rosemary. George Walton Beaver was the son of an assistant chief clerk at the General Land Office; he was a collector (cut-off man) for the City Water, Light, and Power Department, with a short interval as a salesman for Thomson Motor Company. Prior to the construction of this house, he was single and living with his parents, so this house was the first house that the couple shared after their marriage. They lived here until around 1940; the house became rental unit through the mid-1940s, and then was purchased by Waggoner E. and Margaret Sanders, who lived here until the mid-1950s. Waggoner E. Sanders was the president of the Austin Neon Advertising Company. Henry E. Baumgarten and his wife, Hattie, were the owners and occupants of the house through the late 1950s. Henry Baumgarten remodeled the house to create extra space in the attic in 1957. He was the manager of the Carnation Milk Company, with a plant on the San Antonio Highway. Hattie Baumgarten was a school teacher at Casis. Through the 1960s, the house was owned and occupied by Edgar Sanders, Jr. and his wife, Doris. Edgar Sanders was an accountant. Malcolm Genet, an assistant professor at the University of Texas, is listed as the owner and occupant in the early 1970s; Linda Genet is listed as the occupant through the early 1990s.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Release the permit as proposed. The proposed addition is a very sensitively-designed modification to the house, which will match the existing house in terms of style, roof pitch, scale, and massing, and will be differentiated from the original house by a change in materials. The addition is compatible with the design of the house and the character of the district.
