PROPOSAL

Construct a rooftop addition.

PROJECT SPECIFICATIONS

The applicant proposes to construct a rooftop addition to a contributing building within the Sixth Street Historic District. The addition will consist of a deck right up to the parapet wall with a steel trellis beginning 13.5 feet back from the front parapet. The rooftop will also have a glass-framed stair enclosure and a bar addition at the rear with prefinished steel panels. The front of the bar addition will be set approximately 25 feet back from the front parapet. A new guardrail and planters are proposed for the edge of the parapet. The windows and doors will be refurbished.

STANDARDS FOR REVIEW

The building is contributing to the Sixth Street National Register Historic District, which has Architectural Design Guidelines, providing:

- ◆ Minimize the visual impact of rooftop uses as seen from the street.
- ◆ Set activities back such that they are not visible from the sidewalk below. At a minimum, they should be set back the height of a one-story building. This includes trees, umbrellas, and tables.

The Downtown Austin Plan states that a minimum 15-foot setback for all rooftop uses is appropriate for buildings within the Sixth Street National Register Historic District.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Staff cannot recommend this proposal, as even though the bar is set significantly back from the front parapet, the rooftop area, including the planters and trees, are right up on the parapet, in violation of the Architectural Design Guidelines for Sixth Street and the recommendations of the Downtown Austin Plan.

The Commission asked staff to look into the history of the building at the October 27, 2014 meeting; while the building has been altered (then restored) over the years, it dates from the late 19th century, and was once the home of several African-American professional offices, including that of real estate brokers, attorneys, and a dentist, the Knights of Pythias Lodge Hall for African-Americans, and an African-American boarding/apartment house during the times of segregation in Austin when African-Americans were universally denied lodging or housing in white businesses and neighborhoods.

This building represents the polyglot environment of E. 6th Street in its heyday – which had a combination of Anglos, Germans, African-Americans, Jews, and Lebanese business owners, tenants, and residents.

The June, 1883 Sanborn map shows a one-story veneered building on the site which was used as a lunch room and grocery. The building had a wraparound porch around the corner of Neches Street.

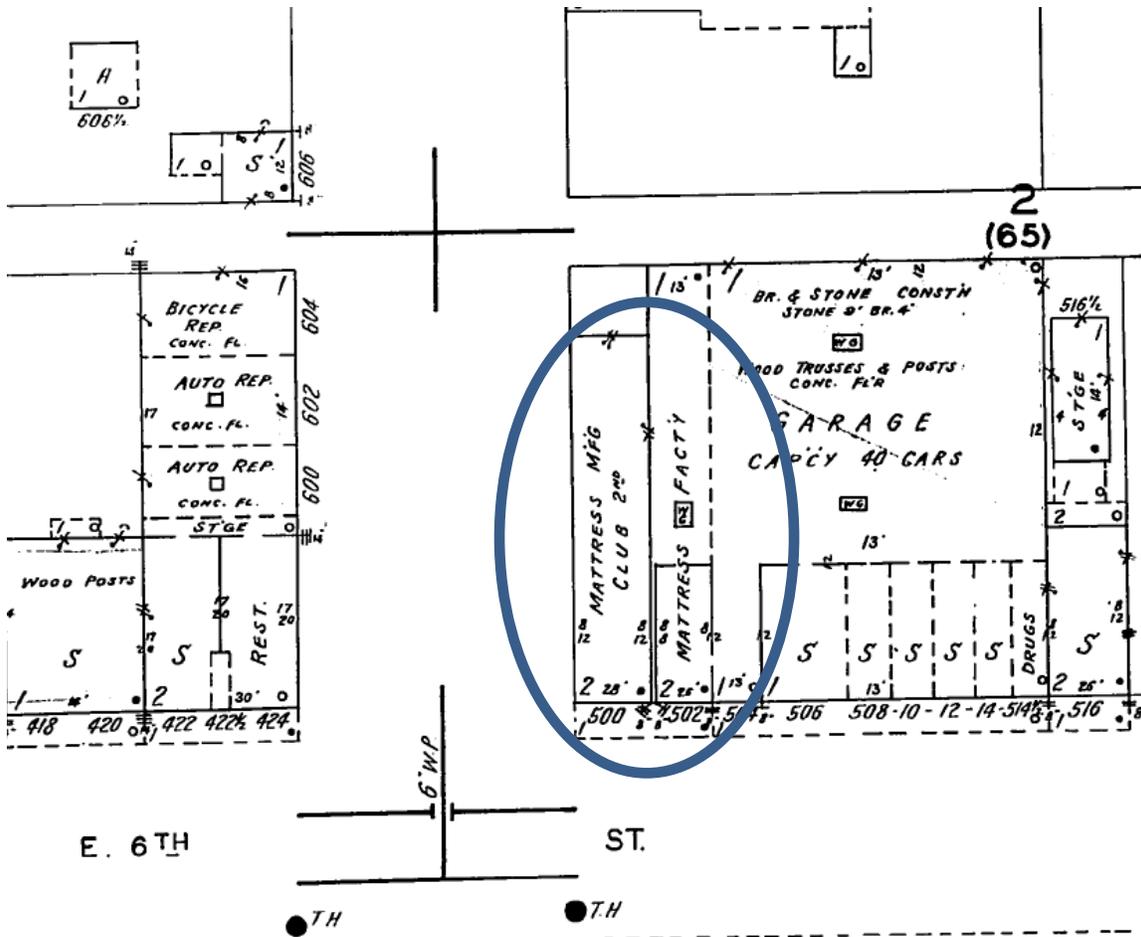

NECHES

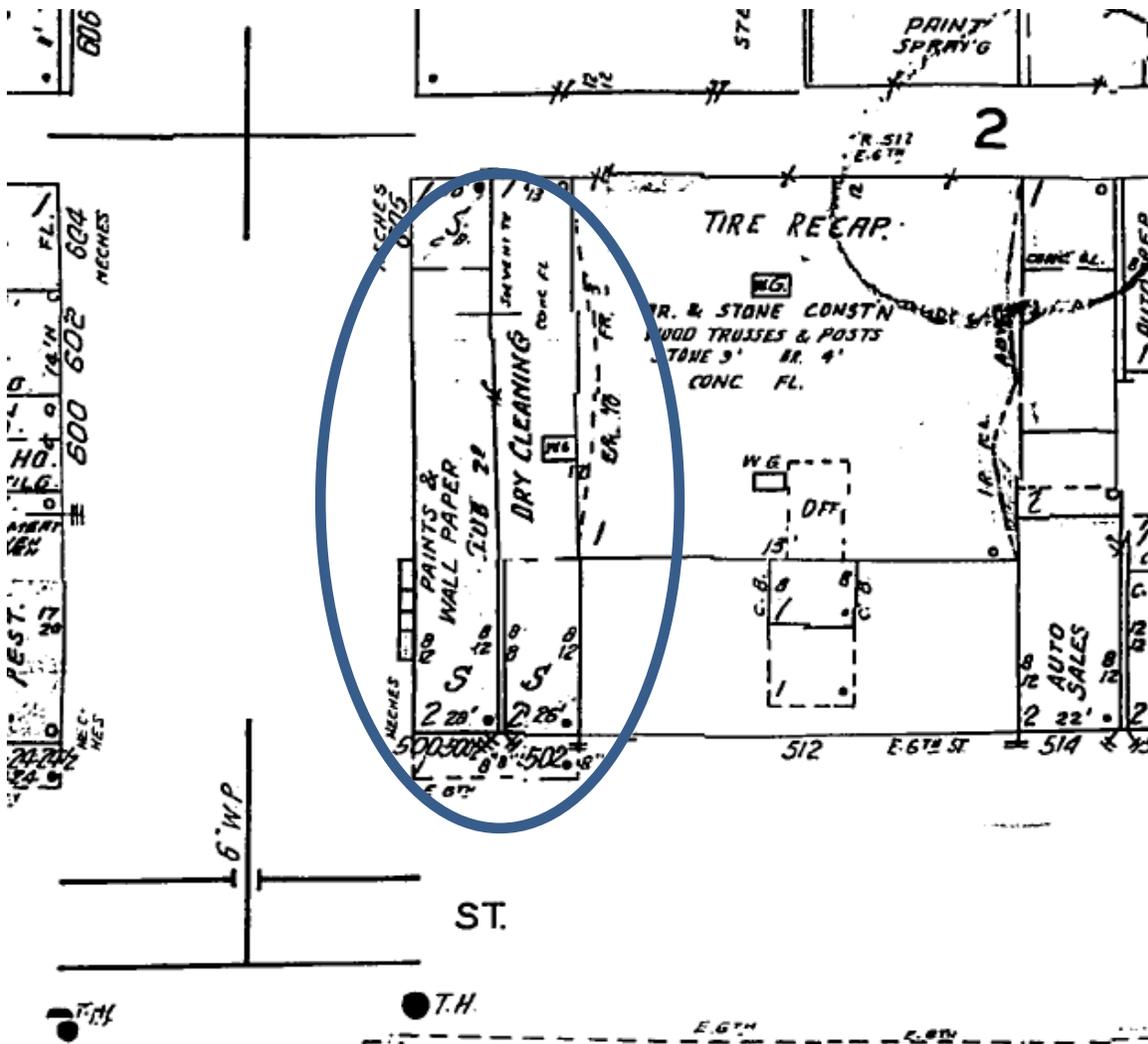

The July, 1889 Sanborn map shows a one-story veneered boarding house on this site.

● DH:
 The 1900 Sanborn map shows the 2-story building listed as a store – the building had a 1-story porch on the front. Note the 2-story building at 502 E. 6th Street – this was later General Hamby's saloon and Happy Time Theater.

The 1935 Sanborn map shows the Hurley Mattress Company plant in this building and in the adjacent building at 502 E. 6th Street; the building at 500 E. 6th Street had a club (the Zaragoza Club) upstairs.

The 1961 Sanborn map shows the building as a paints and wall paper business (Cut Rate Paint Company, and George Hoover's cleaning business next door at 502 E. 6th Street.
