General Principles

The City of Austin opposes any legislative or regulatory actions that:

- Erode the home rule authority of municipalities,
- Constrain the ability of the City of Austin to allocate resources to areas of locally determined concern, or
- Preempt City of Austin authority in matters generally and traditionally the domain of local government.

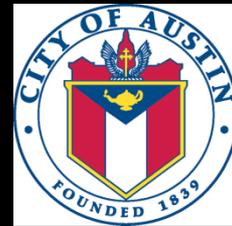

General Principles

The City of Austin supports policies and legislation that:

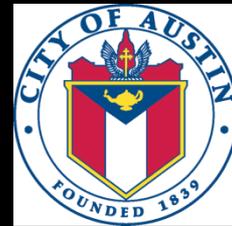

- Provide an equitable distribution of federal funds,
- Address the concerns and needs of large metropolitan center cities in the areas of transportation, public safety, affordable housing, vibrant and healthy neighborhoods, energy and the environment,
- Recognize the important role of strong central cities in our nation's economy and as innovators in broad areas of public policy,
- Provide a solid safety net for economically vulnerable populations, and
- Recognize the challenge of climate change and the need to develop economically sustainable ways to address it.
