If proposing a name other than individual, summarize the reason for the name:

Naming the park after the neighborhood where it is located (and where it is the only park) is a way of continuing to reclaim and honor our area's Highland name, which has too often (recently) had undeserved, negative connotations. It also is a small park, so using the term "neighborhood" in the name references the scale of the park, and points to the close knit feeling of the neighborhood. It is a place where neighbors (and others) can gather in Highland for play, activities, and community, and a create a welcoming oasis in our part of the city. Naming the park after the neighborhood makes it about the people and the place, not one person. Thanks for your consideration.
