

HISTORIC LANDMARK COMMISSION
FEBRUARY 23, 2015
DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION PERMITS
HDP-2014-1131
4807 AND 4809 HARMON AVENUE

PROPOSAL

Demolish a two ca. 1950 houses.

ARCHITECTURE

The house at 4807 Harmon Avenue is a one-story, rectangular-plan, side-gabled frame house with a central, shed-roofed entry hood on ornamental metal posts; metal-framed casement windows.

The house at 4809 Harmon Avenue is a one-story, rectangular-plan, side-gabled frame house with a full-width, shed-roofed, independent porch; single and paired 6:6 fenestration.

RESEARCH

The house at 4807 Harmon Avenue was built in 1950; the first owner and occupant of the house was Helen C. Smith, a widow, who worked as a receptionist and clerk at the General Land Office. There is little information about Helen Smith – unfortunately, there was another Helen C. Smith in Austin at the same time, also a widow, and the available information referencing Helen C. Smith concerns the one that was not married to a man named John. Helen Smith retired from her job at the General Land Office in the mid-1960s, and lived in this house until around 1990.

The house at 4809 Harmon Avenue was also built in 1950; it was owned and occupied by Herman and Leta Morisey through the early 1990s. Herman Morisey was a repairman for the City Electric Department for many years; he retired in the early 1970s. Leta Morisey worked as a telephone operator and clerk for the State Railroad Commission through the 1960s. They had several children; all had clerking jobs.

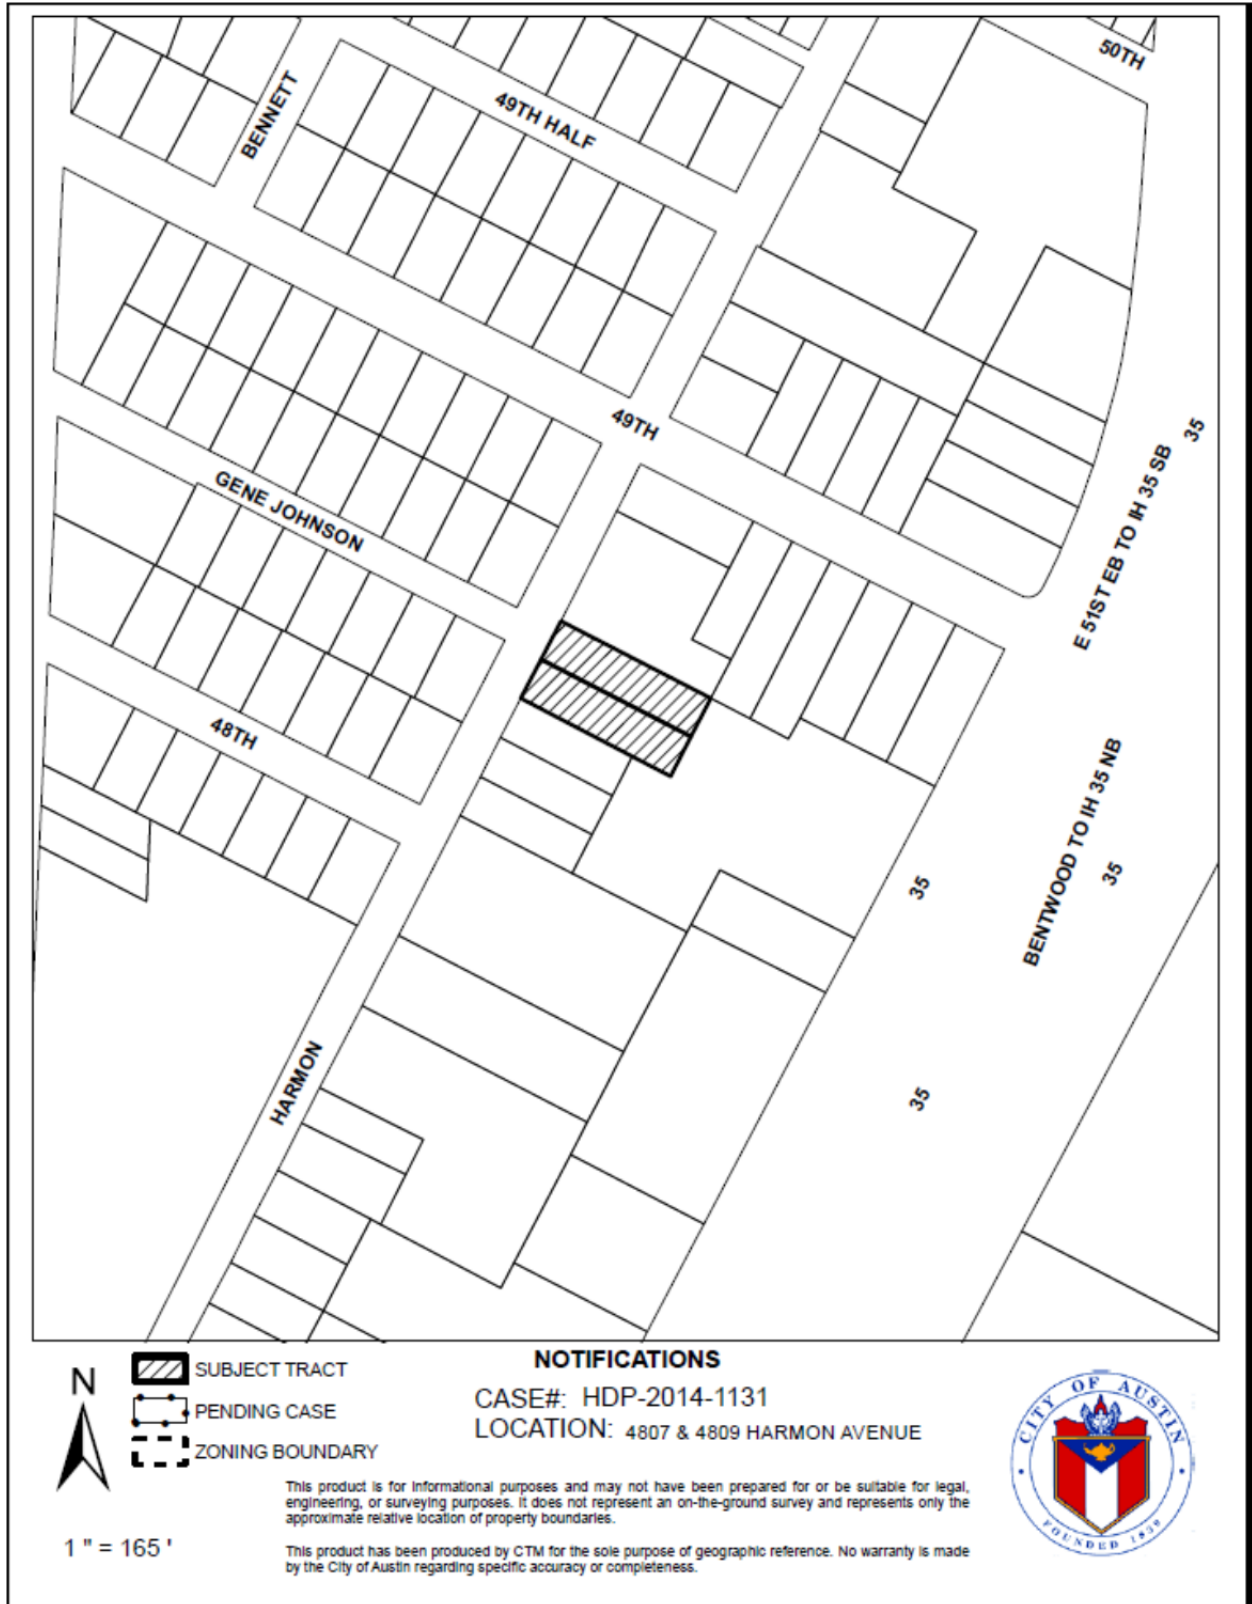

STAFF COMMENTS

Neither house appears in any City survey.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Encourage retention of the houses and the construction of additions if feasible; neither house qualifies as a historic landmark, and although this section of Harmon Avenue has several new 2-story houses and apartment complexes, the numbered streets running between Harmon Avenue and Airport Boulevard are relatively untouched and comprise a neighborhood of post-World War II single-story frame houses much like these. These houses represent the typical residential construction in the neighborhood, and as such, contribute to the character of this 1940s-1950s neighborhood. Careful consideration should be given to whether removal is necessary, or if they can be incorporated into the applicant's proposed development scheme. If rehabilitation and re-use of these houses is not feasible, then staff recommends relocation over demolition, but release of the permit upon completion of a City of Austin Documentation Package, consisting of photographs of all elevations, a dimensioned sketch plan, and a narrative history, for archiving at the Austin History Center.
