This letter documents unprofessional, disrespectful, discourteous, ass-backwards, bullying behavior against me by public servant Hispanic male library staff member John.

Specifically, I first tried logging onto & using the second library computer from the left, the 60-minute station adjacent to the 15-minute computer station. However, that computer's on-screen arrow was not functioning - it was frozen.

So, I checked at the underside of the computer mouse & I could see the red laser light on underneath & that the mouse could be rolled/moved, so that hardware seemed OK.

So, next I checked the mouse's connection to the back of the computer drive hardware. The connection seemed good, so I played with the wire connecting the mouse to the computer hardware, but that, too, did not unfreeze the on-screen arrow.

So, I unplugged & re-plugged in the 60-minute computer to non-verbally signal a problem there that needed to be fixed.

Then, I logged on to the 15-minute workstation & started silently using the computer.

About 2-3 minutes later, public servant library staff member John walked by, saw the adjacent 60-minute computer's mouse unplugged & asked me in a disrespectful tone if I had unplugged it, like he was trying to blame me for something, though I'd done nothing wrong.

So I did not answer his disrespectful, accusatory question, but responded respectfully, telling him that 60-minute computer workstation was not working. However, instead of thanking me for helping him or respectfully asking me what the problem was, John again disrespectfully treated me like a child, immediately telling me not to touch the computer equipment on the back of the hardware, as if the computer was his private property, when the truth is it's public property paid for by public tax dollars for public use, attended to by public servants, like John.

Worse, John's demeaning demeanor clearly implied his unfounded fear that by touching the equipment, I might damage → emotional maturity of a little boy, based on his words & actions.

Therefore, of course, I, the adult, did not respond or leave, but stayed working at my computer, which is my right.

So, John then said he was going to call ~~the~~ APD (Austin Police Department) to remove me, again trying to threaten & punish me ~~for refusing to be~~ bullied or accept his ass-backwards insanity.

So, of course, I did not acknowledge him, respond, or leave, but stayed seated working on my computer. John then walked away from me to call APD. As I was finishing my work, I heard him call APD.

So, after logging off my computer, I got up & loudly & angrily told the female librarian who was closest to me, apparently to find out what ~~he~~ was going on, that I would not be disrespected or bullied like this for quietly sitting at my computer & working. I then demanded to know what his (John's) name is. She said, "John."

Note: she is the same female library staff

the cop the truth, that it was John trying to mess with me. Then the cop asked me what was going on + I told him he was called because I refused to be bullied by public servant John, that GOD knows the truth, + that there's no fooling GOD. The cop agreed.

I then asked the cop to whom do I speak to requisition the video of the incident. During my conversation with the cop, the officer told me he'd document in his report my claim that librarian John repeatedly tried bullying me + that I refused to allow ~~myself~~ him to treat me that way.

Though my interaction with the officer was professional, I was still detained + not free to go ~~as~~ because of John's unprofessional, abusive bullying behavior that has no place in the Austin Public Library system or Austin, AT. large. See how ass-backwards + wrong that is? It's John who should be detained, restricted, + not free to act + speak that way to me.

John's ~~at~~ words + actions exemplify crybullying, meaning when their attempted psychological bullying fails, they flip on their backs to play the victim to fool others into believing he, the attacker, was of investigating, charging, & punishing reverse sexual harassment against patrons John is legally bound to serve.

Remember, John attacked me, ~~didn't~~ doing this to himself. Had John treated me respectfully & professionally, the way each & every public servant library staff member should at all times, this incident could have been completely different.

When John noticed the 60-minute station's computer mouse unplugged, he could & should have respectfully said to me, "Excuse me, sir. I'm sorry to bother you, but I saw this mouse unplugged. Do you happen to know what's going on with this computer?" Then, I could have told him what I knew & had tried to do to solve the problem & John could have taken it from there, without all the problems he caused for himself. That's how normal, healthy people think, speak, & act.

Instead, John repeatedly tried interrupting me, rudely, & disrespectfully, to bully & punish me to effeminate & emasculate me to confuse & control me to gaslight me, hell no to all of that.

Therefore, based on his alien, ass-backwards mindset, words, & actions, John behaved like →
