The contract is for consulting services that will assist with the impartial hearing examiner process for Austin Water's cost of service and rate review. Raftelis Financial Consultants Inc., (Raftelis) developed the cost of service model that will be used in the rate development. Additionally, Raftelis has been the rate consultant in developing the cost of service methodologies that will be defended in the impartial hearing examiner process.

In addition, Raftelis developed a cost of service rate model, which will be the basis for the impartial hearing examiner rate filing package. They will assist with drafting of the initial rate filing package for the impartial hearing examiner. This will include a detailed drafting of the evolution of Austin Water's cost of service and rates, provide ongoing support and expert testimony on key issues during the impartial hearings examiner's hearings.

If the City is unable to secure a contract, the additional meetings and data for the impartial hearing examiner process will be greatly impacted.
