

HISTORIC LANDMARK COMMISSION
AUGUST 27, 2018
DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION PERMITS
HDP-2018-0330
1212 TAYLOR STREET

PROPOSAL

Demolish a ca. 1925 house.

ARCHITECTURE

One-story, rectangular—plan, front-gabled frame bungalow with a partial-width inset porch; single and paired 1:1 fenestration.

RESEARCH

The house was built in 1925 by carpenter Charles W. Loney, who lived here with his wife and family until around 1930. The house then became a rental property until around 1960. During the time the house was a rental property, the tenants included a yardman at the State Capitol, an evangelist, a mechanic, and a worker for the City Electric Department, all of whom had tenancies of only a year or two. Beginning around 1943, the house was rented by Aubrey and Ola Mae Everhard, who lived here until around 1950. Aubrey Everhard was a book-keeper for several contractors, including the plumber R.W. Gissell.

Santos and Anita Pardo purchased the house around 1960. Santos Pardo was a laborer for a wholesale hardware business. After he died in 1975, Anita Pardo continued to live here through the early 1990s.

STAFF COMMENTS

The house is recommended as contributing to a potential historic district along Taylor Street in the East Austin Historic Resources Survey (2016).

Staff would argue that just Taylor Street would qualify as a historic district, with less dilution of resources, and that this house would definitely contribute to a potential smaller historic district encompassing just Taylor Street.

Staff has evaluated this house for designation as a historic landmark and has determined that the house may meet the criteria for landmark designation as set forth in City Code:

- a. Architecture. The house is a frame mid-1920s vernacular bungalow with an inset porch, a relatively rare form in Austin, where most bungalows had independent porches to catch more of a breeze. While not stylistically significant, the house does reflect the architectural style of the time it was built, and would be integral to the preservation of the character of Taylor Street, a remarkably intact block just east of the freeway.
- b. Historical association. The house has less than optimal significance in terms of its historical associations, but does reflect the lifeways of lower middle class Austinites in the mid 1920s, without specific references to anyone in particular.
- c. Archaeology. The house was not evaluated for its potential to yield significant data concerning the human history or prehistory of the region.
- d. Community value. The house does not possess a unique location, physical characteristic, or significant feature that contributes to the character, image, or cultural identity of the city, the neighborhood, or a particular demographic group.
- e. Landscape feature. The property is not a significant natural or designed landscape with artistic, aesthetic, cultural, or historical value to the city.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Encourage rehabilitation and adaptive re-use, then relocation over demolition, but release the permit upon completion of a City of Austin Documentation Package, consisting of photographs of all elevations, a dimensioned sketch plan, and a narrative history, for archiving at the Austin History Center. While this house may not qualify as a historic landmark on its own merits, it would be an integral part of a small Taylor Street historic district, and removing it should be a last resort to adaptive re-use and rehabilitation that would encourage the preservation of the historic character of the neighborhood.
