DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION PERMITS
HDP-2019-00251
1410 EAST CESAR CHAVEZ STREET

PROPOSAL

Demolish a ca. 1906-09 house.

ARCHITECTURE

One-story, frame wing-and-gable house with horizontal wood siding; partial-width shed-roofed porch with metal posts; single and paired 1:1 fenestration.

RESEARCH

The first owners and occupants of the house were Benjamin and Della Morrall and their children, who moved there from nearby Canterbury Street. Benjamin worked as the freight agent for the H & TC railroad when he bought the lot from neighbor Celia Stavely in 1905. By 1916, he had returned to his original career at the telephone company; he had been a pioneer of the telephone and telegraph industry in Austin, managing the service in various capacities from 1884 to 1892. The Morrall family lived at 1410 E. Cesar Chavez until 1924.

After 1924, the house was occupied by renters and a few short-term owners until the 1950s, when it was purchased by Charles and Lola Davis. Charles, known as Carney, worked as a bus driver for AISD, and had been previously employed by the Austin State Hospital. Lola had also previously worked in patient care at the Austin State Hospital. Together, they operated the Davis Home for the Elderly out of the house until at least the late 1960s.

By 1973, the Davis Home had closed and the house was occupied by Miguel and Lucy Ramos and their family. Miguel Ramos worked as a cutter for True Fit Boat Seats, and Lucy worked at the Data General computer assembly plant. The Ramos family lived in the home until at least 1992.

STAFF COMMENTS

The property was recommended contributing to a local and National Register historic district by the East Austin Historic Resource Survey (2016).

Designation Criteria—Historic Landmark

- 1) The building is more than 50 years old.
- 2) The building appears to retain a moderate degree of integrity.
- 3) Properties must meet two historic designation criteria for landmark designation (City of Austin Land Development Code, Section 25-2-352).
 - a. Architecture. The house is constructed in the Folk Victorian style.
 - b. Historical association. There do not appear to be significant historical associations, though Morrall's contributions to the telephone industry may warrant Commission consideration.
 - c. Archaeology. The property was not evaluated for its potential to yield significant data concerning the human history or prehistory of the region.
 - d. Community value. The property does not appear to have a unique location, physical characteristic, or significant feature that contributes to the character, image, or cultural identity of the city, a neighborhood, or a particular group.
 - e. Landscape feature. The property is not a significant natural or designed landscape with artistic, aesthetic, cultural, or historical value to the city.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Encourage rehabilitation and adaptive re-use, then relocation over demolition, but release the permit upon completion of a City of Austin Documentation Package, consisting of photographs of all elevations, a dimensioned sketch plan, and a narrative history, for archiving at the Austin History Center. Though the house is part of an extant Folk Victorian grouping of buildings – a style that defined railroad-era South East Austin -- it does not meet the criteria for individual designation as a historic landmark.

Background Information

Death Takes Wire Pioneer

Ben Morrall, 78, longtime Austin resident and a pioneer here in the telephone and telegraph industry, died last night.

Mr. Morrall, a native of England, had lived in Austin about 55 years and was one of the first managers of the Austin telephone system when there were only a few hundred subscribers. For about 25 years he was employed by the Western Union Telegraph company, serving for a time as its night manager; and was freight agent for the H. & T. C. railroad, now a part of the Southern Pacific.

His survivors include one son, Ben T. Morrall; two daughters, Mrs. Wylie E. Glaze and Mrs. Louis H. Blenderman; and three grandchildren, all of Austin.

Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. George Green tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at Thurlow Weed Funeral home. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery under auspices of the Hill City Lodge 456 of A. F. & A. M.

Ben Morrall, Sr., Night W. U. Manager, Retires

Benjamin Morrall Sr., 702 San Antonio street, night manager for the Western Union Telegraph company, celebrated his 70th birthday anniversary Saturday and his retirement on pension from the Western Union service.

Mr. Morrall began his career with the old Erie Telephone and Telegraph company (now the Southwestern Bell Telephone company) on May 1, 1884, in Austin. He resigned this post in August, 1886, and became associated with the Western Union. In October, 1892, he became agent for the Houston and Texas Central railroad here and in December, 1913, was employed by the city of Austin. A year later, Dec. 1, 1914, he returned to the Western Union where he worked continuously until his retirement Saturday. Under Western Union rules, an employe is retired at 70 and participates in the benefits of the company's pension fund.
