HISTORIC LANDMARK COMMISSION DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION PERMITS DECEMBER 17, 2021 PR-21-148307; GF-2021-164895 2500 ROSEWOOD AVENUE

PROPOSAL

Demolish a ca. 1948 house.

ARCHITECTURE

This long, one-story Ranch-style house spans across four lots at the corner of Rosewood Ave. and Bedford St. The house is turned slightly on the site such that the façade faces south toward the intersection. The house is surmounted by a side-gabled roof, with a gable on hipped roof over a small front wing at the east end of the façade and a smaller hipped wing on the east elevation. The porch is a small stoop at the corner of the wing and main volume, with a shed roof supported by decorative ironwork. At the west end of the house is a flat-roofed garage wing. Next to the single-car garage door is a secondary entrance with a metal awning. The 1947 building permit notes a garage, but this wing appears to be an addition.

A major feature of the house is a substantial rectilinear limestone chimney with three flues that intersects and extends forward from the façade. From the chimney to the porch, the house is clad in limestone. The rest of the house has aluminum siding. Windows were replaced in 2013 and include 1:1, horizontal sliding, and picture windows. There is also a large opening with glass blocks between the chimney and garage.

RESEARCH

The house was built in 1948 by contractor Oliver Street for Huston-Tillotson professors Bertrand "Bert" and Hazel Poole Adams, who lived in this house almost until the time of their deaths. Bertrand Adams (1912–1999) was from Waco, Texas. He graduated from Wiley College in Marshall, Texas, earned a Master's in Music Education from Texas Southern University. Bertrand completed a tour of duty in the Navy and was a trombone player in the Navy band. Hazel Poole Adams (1913–2005) was born in Shreveport, Louisiana. She earned a Bachelor's degree in Education from Wiley College and a Master's in Health, Physical Education & Recreation from Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois. Bertrand and Hazel Adams were college sweethearts and married in 1941. The couple moved to Austin in 1945 to teach at Samuel Huston College, Bertrand in the music department and Hazel as the physical education instructor. Both continued to teach at Huston-Tillotson College until 1955.

Bertrand Adams was a noted jazz musician and bandleader in Austin, playing music recitals for the community. His 18-piece band played alongside Nat King Cole in concert in 1947. He was inducted into the Clarksville West End Jazz and Arts Festival's hall of fame in 1994.

Bertrand Adams was also an ardent supporter of Black businesses. He founded or co-founded multiple businesses in the mid-1950s: A and A Insurance Agency, Dominion Finance & Loan Company, Bertrand Adams Cars, and East Austin Motors. Beginning in 1955, he embarked on a 26-year career in government. Among other positions, he was the chief of the Community Action Program Division in the Office of the Governor and field director for the Texas Office of Minority Business Enterprises in the 1960s to '70s. He attended the White House Conference on Small Business and was appointed to the Small Business Administration's Advisory Council for central Texas 1980. Bertrand further supported Black businesses and economic development in East Austin as the co-founder in 1977 and president of the Austin chapter of the National Business League, a Black professional and trade association founded in 1900 by Booker T. Washington.

Hazel Adams continued teaching at Huston-Tillotson through 1955. She taught at health at L.C. Anderson High and joined the faculty of Stephen F. Austin High in 1969. She was named one of the Outstanding Secondary Educators of American in 1973. During the 1950s, she also taught dance classes and coordinated events at the Rosewood Recreation Center and within the Austin Parks and Recreation Department's Rosewood District. After retirement from public school, she worked another 25 years teaching health education for the University of Texas's Division of Continuing Education.

Alongside other Black civic leaders, Hazel Adams was a charter member of the Austin chapters of Jack and Jill of America, Inc. and The Links, Incorporated. She hosted events in her home.

PROPERTY EVALUATION

The property is beyond the boundary of the 2016 East Austin Historic Resources Survey and was not included in any previous survey.

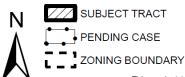

Designation Criteria—Historic Landmark

- 1) The building is more than 50 years old.
- 2) The building retains a moderate degree of integrity, with apparent changes including the flat-roofed garage wing, replacement windows, and aluminum siding.
- 3) Properties must meet two criteria for landmark designation (LDC §25-2-352). Staff has evaluated the property and determined that it may meet two criteria:
  - a. Architecture. The building's long, horizontal lines, exaggerated chimney, limestone cladding, and decorative ironwork are representative of Ranch-style architecture. Austin has relatively few landmarks of this type.
  - b. Historical association. The property is associated with Bertrand and Hazel Adams, who taught at Huston-Tillotson University and advocated for African American businesses and causes.
  - c. Archaeology. The property was not evaluated for its potential to yield significant data concerning the human history or prehistory of the region.
  - d. Community value. The property does not possess a unique location, physical characteristic, or significant feature that contributes to the character, image, or cultural identity of the city, the neighborhood, or a particular demographic group.
  - e. Landscape feature. The property is not a significant natural or designed landscape with artistic, aesthetic, cultural, or historical value to the city.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Consider initiation of historic zoning based on architecture and historical associations. If the Commission does not choose to initiate, encourage rehabilitation and adaptive reuse, then relocation over demolition, but release the permit upon completion of a City of Austin Documentation Package.

'The Holy City' Set Tonight At Huston-Tillotson

H-T Plans Program For Military

A recognition program for men and women in the armed services will be given in the Huston-Tillotson chapel in the Mary E. Branch gymnasium Monday at 10 a. m.

Dr. William H. Jones, chairman the chapel committee, says Judge W. A. Morrison of the Court of Criminal Appeals will make the main address. Guests will be State Veterans of Foreign Wars Commander Ted C. Connell, members of the Austin Post Commanders of the VFW and a contingent from Bergstrom Air Force Base.

The Huston-Tillotson band will play under direction of Bertrand Adams.

Others on the program will be Dr. Granville Sawyer, acting dean of the college; Dr. J. Mason Brewer, chairman of Languages and Literature Division; Fred Simon of the music department, and Dr. Jones.

A full-scale performance of "The Holy City" will officially begin Huston-Tillotson College's fourth annual Fine Arts Festival when it is presented Thursday at 3 p. m. in the Mary E. Branch Auditorium on the east campus of the college.

The program will be the first of a series of attractions to be offered during the four-day festival at the college.

At this initial event, "The Holy City" will get a performance which is thought to be one of the fullest ever presented here. It will be performed by the combined 90-voice choirs of the college and the Wesley Chapel Methodist Church, the Huston-Tillotson and the Austin Symphony Orchestra.

Featured as soloist will be Thelma Slider and Mary Duncan, sopranos; Laverne Willis and Eddie Langdon, altos; William Montandon, tenor; and Israel Smith, bass, Directing the entire production is Nathaniel G. Williams, head of Huston-Tillotson music department. Aaron Cash is the vocal assistant, and Bertrand Adams is the technical adviser.

The program is open to the public without charge.

Business League organizes

Aims to help minority entrepreneurs

By WANDA PRYOR

Staff Writer

About 20 years ago, John Johnson had a great idea for a black magazine that would be circulated across the country.

Bank officers, however, weren't impressed with Johnson's brainstorm. They declined to advance Johnson, a black, the money he needed to get his plan for a black publishing company off the ground.

Minority Enterprise Small Business Investment Corporation (MESBIC) officials did believe in Johnson, Officers of the parent Small Business Administration program came across with the loan.

Today, the Chicago-based Johnson Publishing Company is a multi-million dollar operation, publishing both books and magazines. Two of the firm's magazines, Ebony and Jet, have a combined circulation both in the U.S. and abroad high in the millions.

Potential minority entrepreneurs in Austin may possibly get the same chance Johnson got when the recently-organized Austin chapter of the National Business League gets into full swing.

Eighteen black business-minded persons currently comprise the local chapter and acting president Bert Adams says it just might be possible for the organization to become a MESBIC.

"A MESBIC," explained Adams, who is with the Texas Office of Minority Business Enterprise, "provides venture capital to minority businesspersons who other lending institutions will not touch with a 10-foot pole."

The national organization provides technical assistance and other services to minority businesspersons and potential business-owners, said Adams.

The NBL also encourages and helps business-minded high school drop-outs to become entrepreneurs, he added.

"We will do those two things," he stressed.

By next month, Adams added, the Austin NBL members will have elected permanent officers, finalized its articles of incorporation and selected a board of directors who will set its working policies and goals.

"We may become a MESBIC. We might make a run for some federal money."

"That will be up to the board. I don't want to prejudge the board," Adams said.

The 18-dues paying members of the Austin NBL are not all involved in business but come from a wide range of professions, says the group's acting head.

Euris Carmichael, Austin's only practicing black architect, Edward Hill, owner of Metropolitan Management Company, W. G. Hunt, owner of W. G. Hunt and Co. Realtors are among local NBL members along with Dr. John Warfield, director of the University of Texas' black studies program, and his wife, Jan, who is employed with the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Other members include Mayor Pro Tem Jimmy Snell, an insurance executive, and Leroy Beck, Jr., with the governor's legal office.

The NBL, founded in 1900 by black educator Booker T. Washington, also promotes education and research and acts as an advocate for minority businesspersons with legislative bodies and federal and state agencies.

Its goal is to achieve economic parity for minorities.

Over the years the national organization, which began as a secret society of black tradesmen and merchants, has helped prod the federal Congress into establishing such agencies as the federal Small Business Administration, Federal Minority Enterprise Program and Federal Loan Program.

Generally, said Adams, minority company owners don't have easy access to cash needed to begin a business and many also need outside managerial and marketing expertise. "Those are the big three," he said, adding such problems are comon to all business-owners.

Businesswoman honored

Mrs. Alice King Johnson, operator of King-Tears Mortuary, was honored today for 44 consecutive years in business at a luncheon meeting of the National Business League's Austin chapter.

The Austin chapter of the national organization was formed last summer under the leadership of Greg Roberson and Bert Adams. Adams, a state employee and also with the Texas Office of Minority Business Enterprise, said the league will try to form a Minority Enterprise Small Business Investment Corp. (MESBIC) to provide venture capital to minority business persons.

Today's luncheon was at the Colonial Inn Motel at 3909 S. IH 35. Dr. Reuben McDaniel, associate dean of the University of Texas School of Business, was the featured speaker.

Business League offers blacks help

By RONALD POWELL American-Statesman Staff

Enterprising blacks who have never had the chance to put that fanciful "can't miss" business idea into motion or black businessmen who are trying to get fledgling operations off the ground will find help in the Austin chapter of the National Business League.

The chapter, which was started last summer, has become the fastest growing league member in the South, boasting 79 members.

The Austin members represent virtually all niches of the business spectrum, with the greatest number coming from the professional sector. City Council member Jimmy Snell and former council member Berl Handcox are NBL members.

FOUNDED IN 1900 by black educator Booker T. Washington, the NBL is a network of black businesses spanning the United States that calls on government and industry to provide jobs for blacks and also seeks to aid black businesses already in operation. Members pay monthly dues that are sent to the parent organization based in Washington.

Austin NBL president Bert Adams says the role of the organization has not wavered over the years.

"Our goal is to put black businessmen and blacks hoping to enter business in communication with one another," Adams said. "We want blacks to be aware of business opportunities on the local, state and national levels."

Much of that business awareness, Adams said, will be provided through workshops and seminars to be held locally to address "management and marketing needs of minority business firms."

ESTABLISHED BLACK businessmen will play a vital role in the league by imparting their knowledge to beginners. Adams said the "old-timers" can lend invaluable information to young business hopefuls and help share the wealth within the black community.

"Our office will be the medium by which successful businessmen can help the guy who needs guidance," said Adams. "We will take the place of an Austin or Central Texas Black Chamber of Commerce."

The chairman of the Austin chapter, Greg Roberson, also envisions the group as a force that can change the service-oriented focus of black businesses here.

"Most black businesses in the Austin area are mom and pop operations and we want to change that," Roberson said.

POINTING OUT that there are but a handful of black businesses in the Fortune magazine top 500 national companies, Roberson said, "We want to achieve a goal of economic parity with other businesses by the year 2000."

To the NBL, economic parity means that black businesses will gain full participation in the sphere of national business. Part of that effort will come from lobbying efforts by the NBL to affect congressional legislation that favors black businesses

Dorothy Rowland, president of the Austin Chamber of Commerce and vice president of Capital National Bank, will speak at the chapter's regular monthly meeting, at 11:30 a.m., Tuesday in the Marina Room of the Ramada Gondolier Hotel, Riverside Drive at Interstate 35.

Admission to the meeting, which includes buffet luncheon, is $3.95. Those who plan to attend are urged to join or bring along someone who would like to join the chapter.

Capsuling the purpose of the NBL in business terms, Adams said, "The bottom line is that the National Business League will improve, enhance and increase the quality of minority business life in Austin."

Downtown project okayed

Davidson plans for development office in May

By BRUCE HIGHT American-Statesman Staff

An Economic Development Office charged with overseeing the revitalization of downtown will be in operation by May, City Manager Dan Davidson said Thursday after the City Council approved his proposal for the office.

Davidson said he is not sure yet whether the person selected to head the office will come from his present staff or if he will advertise the new opening, which will carry the rank of assistant city manager.

But, he said, he wants the office functioning no later than June, when the city's Planning Department is scheduled to come up with a plan, complete with drawings, on revitalizing downtown. By June, too, the council will be considering next year's Capital Improvements Program, which is expected to include a number of downtown projects.

The council made two changes in Davidson's proposals at the request of council member Lee

- The recommended $100,000 a year for five years beginning in the 1978-79 fiscal year targeted for special studies was reduced to $50,000 a year.
- In the section asking the council to direct the Planning Department "to complete and recommend a schematic plan for development of downtown Austin," the words "downtown Austin" were changed to specifically include the area along the south shore of Town Lake and certain sections of East Austin.

The last change reflected pressures from leaders in East Austin wanting to make sure revitalization plans include parts of East Austin bordering the business section west of Interstate 35.

Bert Adams, president of the Austin chapter of the National Business League, a black business organization, called on the council to "reject the current (Davidson's) document" and delay action until the city staff could spend time with minority leaders to design a program to help economically develop East Austin.

Melda Cabrerra of the Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce of Travis County said the council should first set priorities for economically developing various areas of town and that the city should reconsider Davidson's proposal, itself generated by action from Mayor Carole McClellan and Cooke.

But several business and downtown leaders urged immediate approval of the proposal.

Warren Beaman of Downtown Austin Unlimited said downtown was not a shopping center but a center for the entire city and all citizens, regardless of color. "Downtown does belong to all of us," he said, and should be developed.

Dorothy Rowland, president of the Austin Chamber of Commerce, also praised Davidson's proposal and urged its adoption. The chamber, she said, built the Stephen F. Austin Hotel in 1926 on Congress Avenue to help downtown and believes the core city should be revitalized now.

McClellan said she felt a "sense of urgency" in starting revitalization efforts.

Public invited to bond-explanation meeting

The National Business League inviteds the public to its meeting Thursday for an explanation of the city's $141 million bond issue.

Bert Adams, local president, said council members, city staff mem-

Ex-business leader, professor of music Bertrand Adams dies

Bertrand "Bert" Adams, a former Huston-Tillotson College music professor who also dedicated many years to promoting African American entrepreneurship, died of heart disease Monday at home in Austin. He was 86.

"He was a great musician himself, and he inspired the young men and young women who took music," said John Q. Taylor King, the former president of Huston-Tillotson College. "He could play anything, but he was a great jazz musician."

Adams was inducted into the Clarksville West End Jazz and Arts Festival's hall of fame in 1994, an honor that he said surpassed the dozens he had received during his long career in government service and as the founder of the Cen-Tex chapter of the National Business League.

Adams was born in Waco, graduated from Wiley College in Marshall and earned a master's in education at Texas Southern University. He spent the next three years as a trombone player in a U.S. Navy band.

He began teaching at Samuel Huston College in Austin in 1945 and continued after the merger that created Huston-Tillotson College in 1952.

In 1955, he left the college for a job with the State of Texas. He worked in the office of minority business enterprise and held several other positions during a 26-year career in government. During a break in his government work, he was the co-owner of an East Austin car dealership. In the early 1980s, he retired as the procurement director of the Texas Industrial Commission.

His survivors include his wife, Hazel Poole Adams, of Austin and one daughter, Brenda Shepherd, of Plano.

A funeral will be at 11 a.m. today at Wesley United Methodist Church, 1160 San Bernard St. Burial will follow at Evergreen Cemetery.

Azie Taylor Morton autographs Austin High students' money

Her world makes money go round

By RONALD POWELL Staff Writer

"How do you determine if a dollar bill is counterfeit?"

"Why is old money destroyed instead of recycled?"

"What criteria is used to determine when paper money should be taken out of circulation?"

Those are just a sampling of the questions that Austin High School government students put to U.S. Treasurer Azie Taylor Morton.

Morton, a Dale native in Austin for the silver anniversary celebration of the merger of Samuel Huston and Tillotson colleges; Wednesday addressed more than 200 teachers and students at the school.

The treasurer also visited with Austin High health instructor Hazel Adams, who taught Morton, a Huston-Tillotson graduate, in a physical education class at H-TC during the mid 50s.

After telling the students and faculty that she would like to be treasurer "as long as there is a Democratic Party in office," Morton began fielding questions from the audience.

One eager student asked how one can differentiate bogus money from real cash.

"All you need to do is get a white sheet of paper, rub the bill onto the surface and, if the bill is good, the green color will rub off," said Morton, whose signature is affixed on all new $1, $5 and $10 bills.

Another student seated in the upper reaches of the high school drama theater wondered why worn dollar bills were not recycled.

"Once the paper is worn," Morton said "You can't get the same quality of bill from recycled material. The old money is destroyed, but I can't tell you how."

Morton, who is also national director of the $8 billion Savings Bond Division of the Treasury, was questioned as to why money is taken out of circulation.

"When dollar bills become old and flimsy, bank tellers collect them, deposit them in a special place and then send them to the regional federal reserve office (for Austin, the money would be sent to Dallas).

"When the bills reach one of the 12 regional offices, they are destroyed. The average life of a bill is only 18 months," Morton added.

The first black to hold the office of treasurer, Morton turned the tables on students and asked them if they were in favor of having the motto "In God We Trust" removed from the face of bills. Austin atheist Madelyn Murray O'Hair recently has been advocating such a move.

Almost in unison, the students voiced their disapproval with a chorus of "no's," many adding, "leave it there."

One student said he had heard that Fort Knox held gold for foreign countries. Mor-ton replied, "There is no foreign gold in Fort Knox, and if anyone says there is, you tell them the treasurer said it ain't SO,"

After the question-answer period, Morton autographed paper money from the pockets of students and faculty.

About the Austin Chapter of Jack and Jill of America, Inc., https://jackandjillaustin.org/about-the-austin-chapter

The Links, Incorporated is an international, not-for-profit corporation, established in 1946. The membership consists of more than 16,000 professional women of color in 288 chapters located in 41 states, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of the Bahamas, and the United Kingdom. It is one of the nation's oldest and largest volunteer service organizations of extraordinary women who are committed to enriching, sustaining, and ensuring the culture and economic survival of African Americans and other persons of African ancestry.

During the middle fifties, Goldie Reid Hortshorn, President of the Houston Chapter of The Links, Incorporated discussed with her sister, Opal McDonald Seabrook, the possibility of setting up a chapter of the Links, Incorporated in Austin. There were subsequent discussions between Goldie Hortshorn and Opal Seabrook. Eventually, Goldie came to Austin for the purpose of meeting with some interested persons regarding a chapter.

Those meeting with Goldie were Opal Seabrook, Connie Yerwood Conner, Olive Durden Brown, and Mary Yerwood Thompson at Mary Y. Thompson's home, 1212 Harvey Street. As a result of this meeting enough interest was shown to indicate the desire on the part of those assembled to proceed with applying for a chapter in Austin Potential members were suggested as follows: Hazel Poole Adams, Thelma Mitchell Elliott, Lillie Belle Corley Hines, Clara M. Cadd Johnson, Catherine B. Lamkin, Percy Grace Skaggs Lyons, Ruth Meeks Mayes, and Emma Louise Smythe Woodward. Together, they completed the necessary twelve for establishing a chapter. Goldie returned to Houston to set the machinery in motion for an Austin Chapter sponsored by the Houston Chapter.

By National Assembly time in 1960, Austin had been approved for a chapter along with San Antonio. Austin and San Antonio collaborated in certain aspects and details in preparation for establishment of the two chapters.

The Austin Chapter of the Links, Incorporated was chartered on December 9, 1960. Installation ceremonies were held in the home of Lillie Belle Hines. The Banquet was held in the home of Percy Grace Lyons with husbands and visiting guests in attendance. Many of the members of the sponsoring Houston chapter and their spouses were in attendance as well as members from the Dallas and Fort Worth Chapters. The new Austin Chapter served breakfast in the home of Hazel P. Adams the following morning.

campus, and let me walk her back to Dogan Hall. As I have mentioned, I greatly admired Bertrand Adams as both leader and director of the Wiley Collegians. Interestingly enough, the dean of the men's dormitory was his wife, Hazel Poole Adams. She was a big, pretty-legged lady, who was a stunner on campus, but ran the dorm as efficiently as any man. She was also the physical education instructor for the women.

When June of 1942 rolled around I headed home to Colorado Springs. There I spent the summer saving money for another year at Wiley by playing gigs around town. I also worked out at Peterson Field Air Base, which was being built

Bertrand Adams Samuel Huston College Huston-Tillo

Samuel Huston College, Huston-Tillotson College, Music Department, 1950s

Born April 29, 1912, died January 4, 1999, buried in Evergreen Cemetery, Austin, Texas.

Bertrand "Bert" Adams was from Waco, Texas. He married his college sweetheart, Ms. Hazel Madree Poole in 1941. Bert completed a tour of duty with the U.S. Navy and earned a Master's in Music Education from Texas Southern University. In 1945 both he and his wife Hazel moved to Austin and were hired as faculty at Samuel Huston College. Their only daughter, Brenda Anne Adams, would be born two years later.

Hazel Poole Adams

Samuel Huston College, Huston-Tillotson College, Physical Education Department, 1945-1978

Born March 22, 1913, died June 30, 2005, buried in Evergreen Cemetery, Austin, Texas.

Hazel Madree Poole Adams was born in Shreveport, Louisiana. She was the only child born to the late Dr. H.H. Poole and Mrs. Anna Romby Poole. She attended Central High School where she graduated in 1929. Several years after receiving a Bachelor's degree in Education from Wiley College in East Texas, Ms. Hazel was hired by the college as its Physical Education Instructor. In 1941, Ms. Hazel married her college sweetheart Mr. Bertrand "Bert" Adams of Waco, Texas. The two would be together on earth for 56 years. By the end of World War II, Ms. Hazel had earned a Master's in Health, Physical Education & Recreation from Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois. Following moving to Austin with Bert and having their daughter, between 1956 and 1978, Ms. Hazel taught P.E. and health education in the following Austin Public Schools; the old L.C. Anderson High School and Stephen F. Austin High School.

She had 44 years of classroom experience. In post-retirement, she worked another 25 years for UT-Austin's Division of Continuing Education, teaching Health Education from home. She also helped develop curricula for the University's Health Education

Correspondence course. Throughout her adult life, she touched the lives of many people. Ms. Hazel was a long-time member of Alpha Kappa Sorority, Inc.; a charter member of the Austin Chapter of Jack and Jill of America, Inc.; and a charter member of the Austin Chapter of The Links, Incorporated. She passed away while living in Plano, Texas with her daughter and son-in-law, and would be reunited with Bert when she was laid to rest next to him in Evergreen Cemetery.
