PROPOSAL

Replace 21 existing 6:6 wood windows throughout a ca. 1932 contributing residence.

PROJECT SPECIFICATIONS

Design proposal includes replacing 21 original wood windows with double-hung fiberglass windows. Muntins are located between the glass in a 3 x 2 configuration. Window openings will remain the same size throughout.

ARCHITECTURE

Two-story, side-gabled, masonry veneer house with 6:6 wood windows, wood shutters, and metal roof.

RESEARCH

The home appears to have been built in 1932 by Maurice F. Granville, though city directories only have him listed as living there in 1932. Directories reveal that his wife and widow, Dora H. Granville, lived in the house during most of the period of significance. Dora Granville lived in the house with her children Maurice Jr., Chester, and Charles Granville. Chester Granville was the captain of the University of Texas basketball team and later served in the United States military in World War II. Charles Granville was an internationally known concert pianist and composer who performed in Europe and Central and South America.¹

DESIGN STANDARDS

The City of Austin's Historic Design Standards (March 2021) are based on the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and are used to evaluate projects in National Register districts. The following standards apply to the proposed project:

Repair and alterations

5. Windows, doors, and screens

Standards in this section emphasize retaining intact historic windows and pursuing selective replacement only when necessary due to deterioration. Per the application, the windows merit replacement based on concerns for energy efficiency and lack of function. The design standards weather-stripping, sealing joints and cracks, installing more efficient heating and cooling equipment, insulating the roof, installing solar screens in existing frames, and adding interior storm windows before replacing historic windows

The proposed windows' false muntins are not appropriate for replacement windows, though the grid pattern is generally compatible with the character of the building and district.

Summary

The project does not meet the applicable standards.

PROPERTY EVALUATION

The property contributes to the Old West Austin National Register district.

Designation Criteria—Historic Landmark

- 1) The building is more than 50 years old.
- 2) The building appears to retain moderate integrity.
- 3) Properties must meet two criteria for landmark designation (LDC §25-2-352). Staff has evaluated the property and determined that it does not meet two criteria:

- a.* Architecture. The building appears to convey the Colonial Revival architectural style.
- b.* Historical association. The property may be significant as the childhood home of pianist Charles Granville.
- c.* Archaeology. The property was not evaluated for its potential to yield significant data concerning the human history or prehistory of the region.
- d.* Community value. The property does not possess a unique location, physical characteristic, or significant feature that contributes to the character, image, or cultural identity of the city, the neighborhood, or a particular demographic group.
- e.* Landscape feature. The property is not a significant natural or designed landscape with artistic, aesthetic, cultural, or historical value to the city.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Consider associations with Charles Granville and assess whether there is sufficient evidence to support historic zoning. If associations with the Granville family are not found to be sufficient evidence to support initiating historic zoning, comment on and release of the application.

Austin Pianist On Way Back From Europe

A welcome Christmas present received by Mrs. Dora H. Granville, 1407 Hartford road, was a radio-gram from her son, Charles Granville, pianist and composer, who is on the high seas on the S. S. Siboney en route to the United States. The boat docks in New York Monday.

A few days before Christmas, Mrs. Granville received a sheaf of Portuguese newspapers bearing the photograph of her son and accounts of his concerts over the Emissora Nacional (NBC of Portugal). Mr. Granville has been in Lisbon since September. Previous to that time he had been teaching, under appointment of the pre-war French government, in the College de Jeunes Gens in Sidi-bel-Abbes, Algeria.

A graduate of the University of California, he is a former student of the University of Texas, and has spent many years studying in Europe, particularly under Blanchet in Switzerland.

He had spent a year in Austin when he left for France in 1939 to accept the French government appointment, and he was still in France when the war broke out.

Mrs. Granville is not sure of her son's plans for the immediate future, but he has spoken of a contemplated South American tour. She expects him to remain in Austin, however, for a few weeks at least, before completing any plans.

Three Austin Musicians Dated at Hardin-Baylor

Three Austin musicians will be presented in recitals this week at Mary Hardin-Baylor College in Belton.

The recitals, both scheduled for Thursday in the Alma Reeves Auditorium on the Belton campus, will be played by Charles Granville, pianist, and Rosémarie and Fritz Oberdoerffer, who make up a cello-piano duo.

Granville, an internationally known concert pianist, is now in Austin with his mother, Mrs. Dora H. Granville of 1407 Hartford Road, before launching a late spring concert tour. He has recently returned from a series of concerts in Mexico, where he is a frequent performer.

The Oberdoerffers are both well known in Austin music circles. Mrs. Oberdoerffer as a cellist with the Austin Symphony Orchestra and her husband as a member of the University of Texas music faculty. Dr. Oberdoerfer has also made a number of recital appearances on the UT Faculty Concert Series.

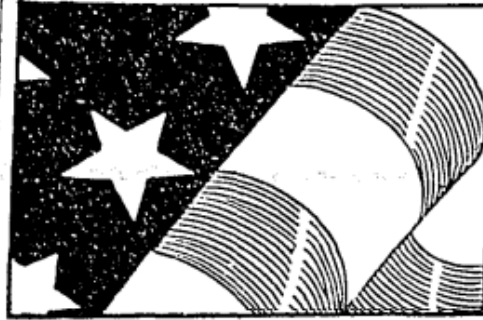

Europe and also did both concert and radio work there.

For their Belton appearance, the Oberdoerffers will perform Hindemith's "Meditation" and "Three Small Pieces" and Max Reger's "Sonata in A Minor, Opus 116."

Granville's program will include selections by Mendelssohn, Chopin, E. R. Blanchet, Debussy and Liszt.

"Our Liberator rocked from side to side from the concussion of flak but we held our course on the bomb run," he said.

Lt. Jacobs, son of Mrs. Adele L. Jacobs, 2623 Salado, attended the University of Texas before joining the air forces. He holds the Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters for his combat missions with the 15th air force.

Wounded when a burst of flak ripped into his bomber during a B-25 Liberator bombing attack against a robot plane emplacement in France recently, Sgt. Wilbur Chapman, 21, of Austin, has been awarded the Purple Heart at an English air force station in England.

Sgt. Chapman was injured while manning his guns in the nose turret of the Liberator "Flak Blow," but has now recovered completely and is back at his guns. He suffered general lacerations.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Chapman of 1200 Garden street, he carries on a family tradition in the European war theater. His father, Jabe Chapman, was a member of the famous Rainbow division in World War I. Sgt. Chapman was a student at Austin high school before entering the AAF in December, 1942. In addition to the Purple Heart, he has also been awarded the Air Medal with one oak leaf cluster.

Tech. Sgt. Doyle S. Killgore, son of J. R. Killgore, 317 Bowie, has been awarded the Air Medal in recognition of meritorious achievements while participating in aerial flights in the European theater of operations during the recent invasion of France.

Sgt. Killgore went overseas a year ago as a member of a troop carrier combat crew. He has been in the army the past five years. His wife lives in Augusta, Ga.

The promotion of Chester Granville from the rank of second to first lieutenant has been announced at an English fighter command station in England. Lt. Granville, whose wife lives at 2406 Enfield road, has been making bomber-escort and strafing missions over invaded Europe.

Lt. Granville, son of Mrs. Dora H. Granville, 1407 Hartford road, is a former captain of the University of Texas basketball squad.

By MARGARET MAYER

First Lt. Robert C. Griffith, 20, of Austin was elevated to the ranks of leading 15th air force P-38 Lightning pilots when he shot down his fifth enemy plane July 8.

With more than 50-odd combat missions now to his credit, it was on his second strafing mission over Yugoslavia May 29 that he destroyed an HE 111 bomber on the ground at the Banjaluca air-drome. Later he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his "extraordinary achievements" on this assignment.

June 26 over Vienna he shot down one ME 410 and severely damaged two additional planes of the same type in a savage sky battle. Previously he blasted an HE 111 bomber from the skies over Brassy, Romania.

He exploded two ME 109s in a scrap over Hungary on July 2, and then became a five victory pilot July 6, on his 51st mission by destroying another ME 109 in a battle over Vienna. He was leading his squadron on the day of his latest victory and saw the group's Lightnings shoot down 21 enemy fighter planes without loss in one of the most decisive battles of the unit's outstanding career.

"Bob" or "Griff" as fellow pilots call the new ace, left Austin High school Oct. 25, 1940, when his Texas national guard unit was called into federal active duty. Later he transferred to the air corps and received his commission and pilot's wings July 28, 1943, at Williams field, Ariz.

His mother, Mrs. Percy R. Griffith, who formerly lived at 708 Bowie, is now residing in Texarkana.

First Lt. Billy J. Jacobs, Liberator pilot in Italy, described a recent bombing of an aircraft assembly plant at Bad-Vosau, Austria, as "the most beautiful bombing I have ever seen."

The highest position a cadet in training can reach has been reached by Chester W. Granville, who is cadet colonel and wing commander of his class at Gardner field, Calif., a basic pilot school. It's Cadet Col. Granville's job to oversee the running of the squadrons in their daily work, lead the cadet detachment at retreat and help keep the boys on the ball—all in addition to his main stint, which is learning to fly for the army air corps.

Being in a topflight position is, of course, nothing new to this tall young Texan. His stellar play helped the Longhorn basketball team to a championship in 1939 and he also was active in campus organizations during his U.T. years, 1937-41. He was a member of the Cowboys, vice president of the T-Association in 1940 and was appointed to the judiciary council in 1940. Granville is the son of Mrs. Dora H. Granville of 1407 Hartford Road.

He was working for an oil company in Kansas City when he enlisted and returned to San Antonio for his appointment as a cadet, then was sent to Santa Ana, Calif., for his pre-flight and on to Ontario (same state) for his primary. He reported to Gardner field in July for his basic.

He likes California, which has been enhanced in his eyes by the presence of his wife, the former Miss Dorothy Farmer of Austin, who has accompanied him through his training. She is an active member of the Gardner Field Cadet Wives club and is her husband's favorite dancing partner when they take in the big-name bands—the Dorseys, Harry James, Rudy Vallee, et al.

"... but there's no place like Texas, and especially Austin," this transplanted Texan opines.

Cadet Granville's brother, Maurice Granville, who is with an oil company, has visited California several times while Chester has been in training there. Maurice is member of a committee of engineers who are making surveys as to how the manufacture of 100 octane gasoline can be speeded up.

Going Up Dept.: Capt. Clarence Morris, formerly professor of law at the University of Texas, has been promoted to major at the Altus, Okla., army air field, where he is director of the ground school. He was senior instructor in air forces and special assistant to the ground school director at Ellington field before his assignment to Altus. Maj. Morris did a lot of outstanding things in law, including a book, "How Lawyers Think," which the Harvard university press released in 1938, and a paper he presented to the second International Congress on Comparative Law at The Hague in 1937.

Theodore A. Juhring has been a captain at Atlanta, Ga., headquarters, fourth service command, has announced. He is assigned to the internal security division as assistant chief, military police branch. Capt. Juhring served in France with the 36th division in World war I and also in the Mexican border campaign. In 1924 he reorganized the headquarters company of the 36th at Galveston. Capt. and Mrs. Johring are living at 1517 Marbur avenue, S. E., in Atlanta.

Army good conduct medals have been presented to 1st Lt. Willie E. James, stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., and 1st Sgt. Beauford J. Meeks, on duty at Camp Beale, Calif.

More promotions: Byron W. Dulin, 1209 West 12th, formerly with the state highway patrol, to corporal at Patterfield field, Ohio. Leon S. Dunn, son of Mrs. Geneva Holmes, from pfc. to technician fifth grade. He's on duty in the European area.

Graduations: Second Lt. John W. Storm, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Storm of 2107 Neches, and Glenec, N. M., from the engineer officer candidate school, Fort Belvoir, Va. A former University of Texas student and a structural engineer in civilian life, he entered the army via Fort Sam Houston last Jan. 7. Bruce S. Reed, son of Thomas P. Reed, Sr., of 1704 Travis boulevard, from the naval air technical training center at Corpus Christi. On graduation, he was promoted to staff sergeant in the U. S. marines. Corp. Laurence W. Hoskins from the AAF technical school at Chanute field, Ill., where he received instruction as a propeller specialist. He is the son of Mrs. Dorothy K. Hoskins of the 101 Ranch, Buda. Dale W. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Miller, 4313 Avenue F, from the naval training school for dieselmen at Iowa State college. He was promoted to rating of fireman second class.

"A Rise to Greatness Amid Tragedy"

BY: CAROLYN HEINSOLHN
(Some Editing by Neale Rabensburg)

All four children of the Maurice Granville, Sr. family, who lived in La Grange for over twenty years in the first half of the 20th century, excelled in every aspect of their lives. Their story begins with Maurice Frederick Granville, Sr., who was born on March 13, 1888 in Bellville, Texas, the son of James Benjamin and Hulda Schenk Granville. Austin County was the first Texas home of the original Granville immigrants, who descended from old English-Norman roots. In 1905, Maurice Granville, Sr. moved to Kerrville, Texas, because of his mother's declining health and need for a drier climate.

Sometime prior to 1910, Maurice Granville, Sr. met his future wife, Dorothea (Dora) Hulda von Rosenberg, the daughter of Carl Johannes (C.J.) and Dora Meyer von Rosenberg, well-known citizens of La Grange. Dora Hulda von Rosenberg was born 1888 in Ellinger, Texas, where her parents were living at the time.

Maurice Granville, Sr. and Dora Hulda von Rosenberg knew one another through common relatives in Bellville, Texas. Maurice's mother, Hulda Schenk Granville, was a sister to Dora Hulda's Aunt Lizette Schenk von Rosenberg, who was married to her father's younger brother, Otto von Rosenberg. Maurice Granville, Sr. and Dora Hulda von Rosenberg, thus, had a common aunt and uncle through marriage. In fact, after Maurice's mother died, Otto and Lizette von Rosenberg reared Maurice's youngest sister, Bessie, who was their niece.

Maurice Granville, Sr. and Dora Hulda von Rosenberg were married in the First Presbyterian Church in La Grange by Rev. John H. Green on March 16, 1910. Initially, they lived in Kerrville, where Maurice, Sr. worked for the Schreiner enterprises, but Dora Hulda disliked the weather there, so they soon returned to La Grange. Maurice, Sr. then went to work for his father-in-law, C. J. von Rosenberg, eventually becoming the manager of the La Grange Cotton and Oil Manufacturing Company. He was quite resourceful in his endeavors and helped the company prosper.

Maurice, Sr. and Dora Hulda's first child, Charles James Granville, was born on January 23, 1911 in La Grange. Since folk and classical music had figured in the lives of the Granville family, Charles had an innate musical ability. He began studying piano at an early age and soon was recognized as a child prodigy in music. After a year at Baylor College, he went to Germany and Switzerland to study with renowned teachers. In the late 1930s, he had to flee Paris, where he was beginning to perform in concerts, due to the impending German occupation. He traveled through Portugal and went to Morocco, where he taught piano in a boy's school. In 1940 he returned to New York and then on to Los Angeles, where he received a degree in music from the University of California. In addition, he excelled in foreign languages, speaking fluent German, French and Spanish. He also studied Portuguese and Italian. Eventually, he moved to Austin, where he was recognized as an outstanding concert pianist, who especially loved to perform the works of Chopin, Liszt, Beethoven and Brahms. Charles died in 1991 and is buried next to his mother in the La Grange City Cemetery near his von Rosenberg grandparents.

Maurice Frederick Granville, Jr., the second son of Maurice, Sr. and Dora Hulda, was born in La Grange on October 26, 1915. He soon began demonstrating his academic strengths and leadership skills. During high school in La Grange in 1931, he received the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award and later was a member of Tau Beta Pi, an Engineering Honor Society, while attending the University of Texas. After graduating from UT in 1937 with a BS in chemical engineering, he worked in the petrochemical industry in Houston. He then moved to New York City to work for The Texas Corporation, which became Texaco, Inc. in 1959.

Maurice Frederick

In January 1945, Maurice, Jr. married Janet L. Knotts in Falmouth, Maine. She was born in 1921 in Washburn, Washington. Their daughter, Carol McCoy (Blyberg) was born in 1946 in Bronxville, New York, followed by their son, Frederick Lloyd, who was born in 1951 in Camden, New Jersey. At some point, Maurice, Jr. did graduate studies in the School of Engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

“The Granville Family”

In 1971, Maurice Granville, Jr. was named CEO and Chairman of the Board of Texaco, Inc. However, the 1970's were a troubled time for Texaco due to the Arab-Israeli War, the OPEC embargo, the nationalization of foreign oil assets in many overseas nations, federal price controls and other restrictions, all of which resulted in a major decrease in the net income for the Company.

In 1975, Maurice, Jr. was the recipient of the Distinguished University of Texas Alumni Award. In 1976, he again climbed to the top of another pinnacle when he became an officer for the Federal Reserve Bank along with Alan Pifer, President of the Carnegie Corporation of New York; David Rockefeller, Chairman of the Board of the Chase Manhattan Group and J. Henry Schroder, Director of Schroder Banking Corporation of New York, Lloyd's Bank of London and Rolls Royce. Maurice, Jr. also received the John Rogers Award from the Institute of Energy Law in 1978. He retired from his illustrious petrochemical career in 1980 to live in his homes in Rockport, Maine and Key Largo, Florida.

His younger brother, Chester Wooten Granville, born on October 2, 1918 in La Grange, was also a high achiever, who excelled academically as well as in sports, which included tennis and basketball while attending Austin High School and the University of Texas. While at Austin High, he held several offices in the debate society and was named to the National Honor Society. At U.T. he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon; the Cowboys; the T Association; intramurals champion in basketball, tennis and badminton; a basketball letterman; and the captain-elect of his team during his senior year. One of his conference basketball teammates was Denton Cooley, who eventually became a world-renown cardiologist in Houston. They both played to a record crowd in Madison Square Garden in New York City in 1940, winning the conference championship. Robert Kleberg, Jr. from the King Ranch family was a fellow member of the Cowboys, an honorary service organization, and Joe P. Hart, who later was an attorney in La Grange, was a fellow member of the T Association, which included the lettermen from all of the varsity athletic teams.

On July 26, 1941, Chester married Dorothy Jane “Dottie” Farmer, who was born in 1921 in Fort Smith, Arkansas. Dottie was a fellow student at Austin High School and then attended the Texas State College for Women in Denton, Texas and the University of Texas.

At the beginning of the U.S. involvement in World War II, Chester enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps and served as a First Lieutenant in the 435th Fighter Squadron Division. He flew P38 and P51 fighter planes in Europe as a squadron leader. On his last flight, knowing that his plane was defective, he did not turn back even though he was flying through a terrible storm. He did not return to the home field in England and was presumed lost over the Irish Sea. He was listed as missing in action on September 14, 1944. His name and the dates of his birth and death are inscribed on the back of his von Rosenberg grandparents' tombstone in the La Grange City Cemetery, as well as on the tablets of the Missing at Cambridge American Cemetery in Cambridge, England. He was awarded an Air Medal with three Oak Clusters.

Rosalind, the youngest child and only daughter of Maurice, Sr. and Dora, was born in La Grange on September 30, 1925. When Rosalind was eight years old, the Granvilles moved to Austin so that the three youngest children could have the advantages of better educational opportunities. Rosalind also attended Austin High School and the University of Texas, where she met her future husband, Randall K. Lowry, who was born in 1924 in Iowa. He was a decorated pilot in the U.S. Army Air Corps, having also served in Europe in World War II. She married Randall in July 1946 in Austin. Randall resumed his college studies and graduated from U.T. in 1949 and began his career with Sylvania Electronics in 1950 in New York City.

Rosalind followed her husband in his career that took him from New York City to Shawnee, Oklahoma, where their two children, Tracy Alice (Martin) and Randall Keith, Jr. were born. They then lived in Pennsylvania, upstate New York and Connecticut. Rosalind became involved in many community activities wherever she lived. After Randall's retirement, they built a home in Horseshoe Bay near Marble Falls, Texas. Rosalind had previously pursued her interest in art and art history by taking up painting as a pastime. An accomplished golfer, Randall was a seven time champion at golf clubs in Oklahoma, New York and Texas. He died in 1995 and is also buried in the La Grange City Cemetery in the same plot with Dora and Charles Granville.
