NXP SEMICONDUCTORS’
FIRST REQUEST FOR INFORMATION
TO AUSTIN ENERGY ON REBUTTAL TESTIMONY

- NXP 1.1. Please provide an electronic copy of all studies, analyses, forecasts, reports, capacity plans, and other documents that discuss and/or determine the forecasted dispatchable capacity necessary to “cover” peak demand requirements.
- NXP 1.2. How does AE determine the forecasted “system peak” when assessing if it will have enough dispatchable generating capacity to “meet or exceed the system peak”?
- NXP 1.3. Please provide the date and time of the 12 monthly NCP demands by customer class used by AE to develop its proposed 12NCP demand allocation factor.
- NXP 1.4. Please refer to page 21, lines 7 through 9, of the rebuttal testimony of AE witness Mr. Burnham. Regarding the two full sentences on those lines, provide a copy of all studies, analyses, load research data, and other information that supports the claim that AE off-peak and seasonal customers are not included in the 1NCP but are included in some of the 12NCPs by customer class.
- NXP 1.5. Please refer to Section II.E. of the rebuttal testimony of Mr. Burnham. For each of the three Above 20 MW High Load Factor customers, provide the number of feet of AE primary lines to the customer’s point of delivery (“POD”) from the primary substation serving the customer and from the back-up substation serving the customer and, for each feeder, indicate if other customers are served by the feeder.
- NXP 1.6. Please refer to page 15, line 4 through 11, of the rebuttal testimony of AE witness Mr. Burnham. When AE’s rebuttal testimony was filed in PUC Docket No. 40627, how many months had the ERCOT nodal market been in effect and explain why it took AE longer than that to recognize “that an effective capacity hedge was a key benefit to AE’s customers ‘and’ that the benefit of the hedge was year-round and not just during the summer peak demand months.”
- NXP 1.7. Regarding AE’s distribution infrastructure planning, identify each “localized maximum demand” that is based on a forecasted or actual peak demand occurring in a non-summer month and provide a copy of the analysis that determined the localized maximum demand.
