Luxury and Custom Design at Westgate

Final details have been released on three of the luxury, custom designed apartments in Westgate, Austin's new high-rise apartment-office building located adjacent to the Capitol.

Furnishings and architectural details of these apartments were all planned by E. J. Revell, Austin interior designer.

According to Mr. Revell, "Westgate provided us with some design opportunities which were unique to Austin. First of all there was the impressive dignity of the building. Secondly, the magnificent views from every window had to be preserved. Therefore, we designed each interior not only to harmonize with Westgate's [illegible] to take full contrast. The apartment itself is composed of a formal dining room, a living room with a large connecting foyer, two large bedrooms with ample closet space and private baths with dressing rooms, a pantry, a galley type kitchen, and bar arrangement.

Twelve floor-to-ceiling windows, all with the special tinted glass to be used throughout the building provide light, sun protection, and a view of the city from each room.

The second rendering shows the dining room in another of the custom units. In this apartment, 18th century antiques are adapted to simple, more modern backgrounds to give the apartment a [illegible] mosphere.

will have under cover parking, maid service available, solar-windows, roof-top swimming pool and sun terrace, access to a restaurant and a private club, both located on the twenty-third floor. As previously announced, the famed Austin Headliners Club will occupy the entire twenty-fourth floor.

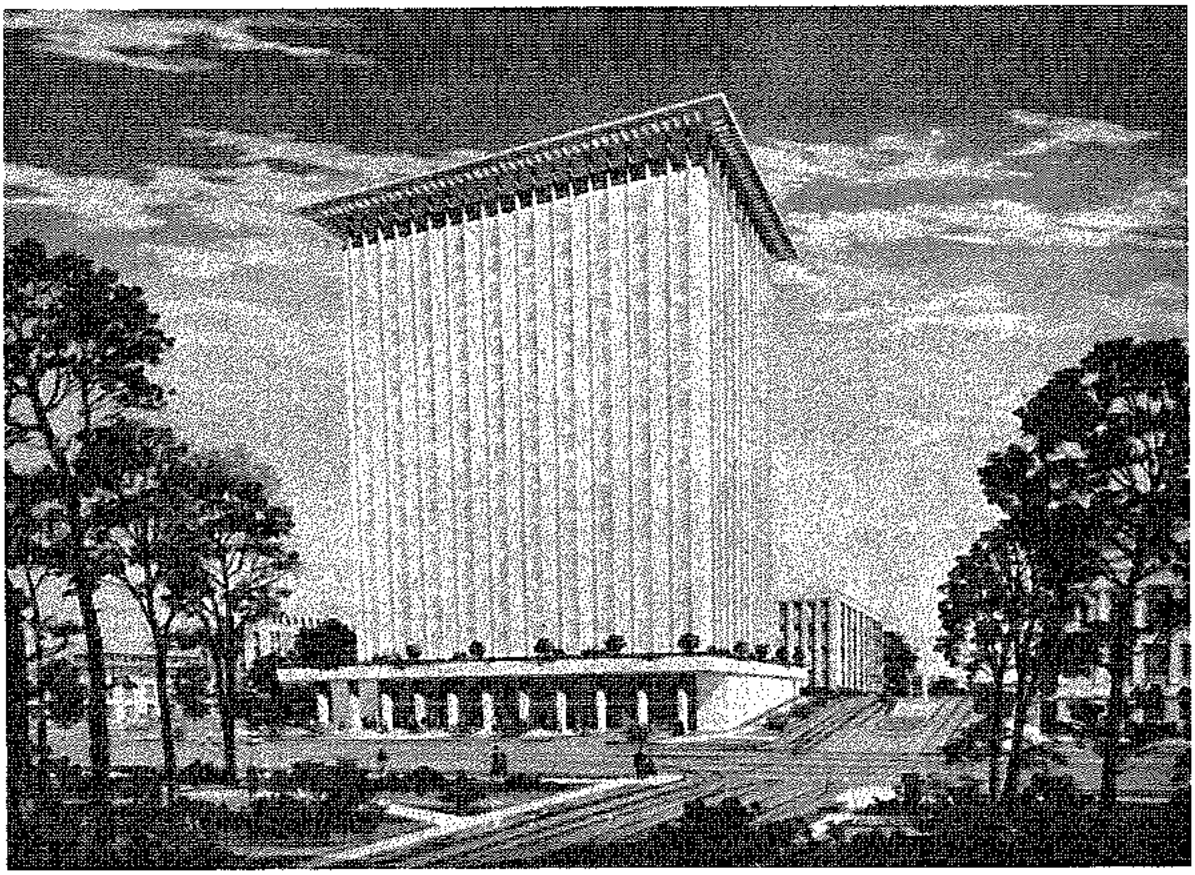

Westgate is a project of Lumbermen's Investment Corportation. The architects are Edward Durell Stone of New York City and Fehr & Granger of Austin.

FUTURE HOME OFFICE OF LUMBERMEN'S INVESTMENT CORPORATION

The Lumbermens Company, a subsidiary of Lumbermen's Investment Corporation, is pleased to announce their plans to construct a 200,000 square foot office and apartment building. The $4 million luxury structure will be located between 11th and 12th Streets and Colorado and Lavaca, immediately adjacent to the Capitol grounds.

The building was designed by Edward Durell Stone, a nationally prominent architect whose major achievements include the United States Pavilion at the Worlds Fair in Brussels, Belgium; the United States Embassy in New Delhi, India; and the proposed National Cultural Center in Washington, D. C. Time Magazine reported recently in a cover story, "Edward Durell Stone was a pioneer modernist, undoubtedly the profession's freest spirit and by general consensus the most versatile designer of his generation, most likely the architect to inherit the place in American architecture Frank Lloyd Wright held."

In addition to being the new home office of Lumbermen's Investment Corporation, the building as presently planned would lease 45,000 square feet of office space to tenants whose functions require a central location.

The proposed 100 apartment units (20 efficiency, 40 one bedroom, and 40 two bedroom) will be located on the upper floors of the building, thus enabling tenants to have a commanding view of the Capitol grounds as well as the Austin business district. Each apartment unit will be lavishly decorated and include a wide range of amenities. Other features of the building include a public and private restaurant on the roof, as well as a variety of service facilities on the ground floor. Ample parking will be provided for all uses in the building.

It is expected that the Lumbermen's building will be a major step forward in stimulating future downtown development activity and will strengthen the business climate for retail merchants.

WESTGATE RISING — Construction is continuing at the historic West Gate of the Capitol here on the 24-story Westgate, an office and luxury apartment structure costing some $3 million. State Representative Henry Grover of Houston has introduced a bill in the House to halt the construction on grounds that the building will block the view of the Capitol. A similar bill was defeated in the last Legislature. Lumbermen's Investment Corporation and The Lumbermens Company, both of which will be headquartered in the building, are the owners. The Headliners Club will occupy the top floor. The building will have 270,000 square feet of floor space. The architect is Edward Durell Stone of New York, called by Time magazine as "the most versatile designer and draftsman of his generation." This color photo is by The Free Press of Diboll. The imposing structure is receiving statewide publicity because of its beautiful design and its location.

Edward Durell Stone (1902 – 1978)

Edward Durell Stone was an early pioneer of the New Formalist style. A highly prolific architect who designed buildings across the globe, by 1958 Stone was one of the best-known architects in America.

Born in Fayetteville, Arkansas in 1902, Stone was the youngest of four children. He displayed an aptitude for drawing at an early age. After attending the University of Arkansas, Stone moved to Boston in 1922. He took classes at the Boston Architectural Club (now Boston Architectural College), Harvard University's School of Architecture (where he earned a scholarship), and MIT, though he never earned a degree.

Stone began his career as a draftsman at the Boston-based firm Coolidge, Shepley, Bulfinch and Abbott. He moved to New York in 1929, joining the firm of Schultze & Weaver, where he designed the main lobby, grand ballroom, and private dining rooms of the Waldorf-Astoria. He received his first independent commission in 1933.

Stone traveled often to Italy and drew upon European precedents in his work. He became an early pioneer of the New Formalist style, whose classically inspired forms and materials countered the stark minimalism of the International Style.

His firm achieved remarkable success and international acclaim. Though he lived in New York the rest of his life, Stone designed a number of important buildings in the Los Angeles area. In 1958, the American Institute of Architects (AIA) selected Stone's Stuart Pharmaceutical Company (/locations/stuart-building) building in Pasadena as one of the five best designs of the year.

Financier Howard Ahmanson (responsible for the Home Savings and Loan branches designed by Millard Sheets) commissioned Stone to design his Wilshire Boulevard headquarters. Completed in 1967, Ahmanson Center (now Wilshire Colonnade (/locations/wilshire-colonnade)) remains a striking monument to Ahmanson's financial and cultural contributions to Los Angeles.

Stone's Edward T. Foley Center (/locations/edward-t-foley-center-loyola-marymount-university) (1964) on the campus of Loyola Marymount University (LMU) became an advocacy issue for the Conservancy in 2010. LMU released a master plan for its Westchester campus that retained the university's oldest structures yet left postwar buildings such as the Foley Center at risk. The Conservancy worked with LMU and the City of Los Angeles to revise the master plan to include this excellent example of Stone's work.

Other examples of Stone's work in Greater Los Angeles include Kresge Chapel (/locations/kresge-chapel-claremont-school-theology) at the Claremont School of Theology (1957), Perpetual Savings and Loan Association (/locations/home-federal-savingspacific-mercantile-bank-building) in Beverly Hills (1961), Beckman Auditorium (/locations/beckman-auditorium-cal-tech) at Caltech (1963), and the Von KleinSmid Center at the University of Southern California (/locations/university-southern-california-modern-buildings) (1966).

Stone retired in 1974 and died on August 6, 1978. His firm, Edward Durell Stone & Associates, continued until 1993.
