Additional Backup Information

The contract will provide liquid phosphate for Austin Water Treatment Plants. Liquid phosphate is used in the treatment of drinking water at the water treatment plants to reduce the amount of scale formed in the distribution system lines. If the water treatment plants do not add liquid phosphate during the treatment process, there would be a significant amount of additional scale build-up over time.

The recommended contractor is the current provider for these goods. The requested authorization amount was determined using departmental estimates based on historical spend, future usage, and projected market fluctuations. The current contract's authorization is depleting faster than expected so to ensure there is not a lapse in supply, the request for a replacement contract is being brought forward at this time.
