

MEMORANDUM

TO: Mayor and Council

FROM: Sylnovia Holt-Rabb, Director SHR
Economic Development Department

DATE: May 16, 2023

SUBJECT: CORRECTED: Workforce Development Contracts on May 18, 2023 Council Meeting

This memorandum responds to Council Member Alison Alter’s budget rider (“Rider”) directing the City Manager to deploy $3,101,305 million in Fiscal Year 2023 general operating funds (“Funds”) to support workforce development contracts that provide long-term job training. Three items on the May 18, 2023 Council agenda correspond to Council’s budget rider. Accordingly, the Economic Development Department (EDD) recommends Council authorization of the following contract and two amendments that provide financial support and extensive professional guidance in careers that provide livable wages in Austin.

Item 11 authorizes amendment to increase City’s contract with Capital Investing in Development and Employment of Adults Inc. (Capital IDEA) by $500,000 to continue workforce development targeting the healthcare industry and expands services to 13 additional clients. Capital IDEA’s Nursing pilot program positions participants to earn a Bachelor of Science in Nursing (RN BSN), the degree most preferred by local hospital systems. The funds proposed will result in five (5) additional nurses trained through Concordia University and eight (8) dental hygienists trained in collaboration with Austin Community College.

Item 13 authorizes amendment to increase the City’s contract with Workforce Solutions Capital Area Workforce Board by $1,000,000 to continue providing early childcare education employees with wage stipends via the Jeanette Watson fund. Approximately 200 additional clients will be served. This contract amendment will increase access to wage stipends for childcare employees up to $2500/year to improve retention, care quality, and stabilize classrooms.

Item 29 authorizes contract with Raising Austin dba Together4Children to provide workforce development training for childcare workers in amount not to exceed $351,270 to help stabilize the childcare industry through targeted development of the early childhood labor force. Early childhood education is a vital economic sector but has recovered only 76% of jobs lost during the pandemic. Lack of qualified staff has caused 89% of childcare providers in Travis County to report difficulty hiring in the past six (6) months. Accordingly, EDD recommends targeted investments to stabilize the early childhood labor force via training opportunities for childcare center directors and assistant directors.

EDD Workforce Development Portfolio

Table 1 below summarizes EDD’s current workforce development portfolio and funding commitments through FY24. EDD’s workforce development portfolio targets strategic investment in healthcare, information technology, skilled trades, and advanced manufacturing industries. These targeted industries were informed by stakeholder engagement, findings and recommendations from the 2017 and 2022 Workforce Development Audit and Follow-Up Reports and labor market data. Contracts with Capital IDEA, Skillpoint Alliance, AUTMHQ, and ARMA are responsive to recommendations from the Austin Metro Area Community Workforce Plan Year Two Report 2018-2019, prepared by Ray Marshall Center for the Study of Human Resources at the University of Texas at Austin. Overall, the total projected number of clients served from these commitments is 2,437 with a potential outreach of over 10,000 individuals for basic employment services.

Proposed Workforce Development Commitments

Table 2 below outlines EDD’s proposed workforce development commitments that target Austinites facing barriers to labor force entry and upward economic mobility. Two out of the three items on the May 18 Council agenda are amendments to supplement workforce contracts currently funded by ARPA allocations (Capital IDEA and Workforce Solutions Capital Area). The contract with Together for Children – Texas Child Care Leadership Academy will help close the gap for childcare workers currently in high-demand in Austin. EDD will also continue to support the Workforce Education and Readiness Continuum (WERC) contract managed by Austin Public Health that provides Adult Basic Education, English as a Second Language (ESL) classes, and occupational training in preparation for advanced training in high-demand industries that provide livable wages for Austin (healthcare, information technology, advanced manufacturing, and skilled trades). EDD will also continue to support the Austin Film Society Creative Careers program managed by the Financial Services Department (FSD) which offers occupational training in film and media production for youth including internships and apprenticeships. Overall, the total projected clients served from these commitments is 625.

EDD will fund a participant outcomes study for trainees to determine causes of wage stratification and failure to thrive post completion of workforce development training. The participant outcome study will be conducted by research faculty from Ray Marshall Center for the Study of Human Resources at the University of Texas at Austin under the UT – COA research ILA. This study will identify causes of earnings stratification among workforce development program participants by race-ethnicity and gender across the City’s target industries and develop interventions for staff to improve outcomes.
