Additional Backup Information:

The Transportation and Public Works Department (TPWD) recommends City Council amend the Austin Strategic Mobility Plan (ASMP), which is an element of the City's Imagine Austin Comprehensive Plan, and adopt the following updated plans: Urban Trails, Bicycles, and Sidewalks, Crossings, and Shared Streets. The ASMP needs to be amended to align with the updated plans, and to reflect the public engagement conducted throughout the ATX Walk Bike Roll (ATXWBR) planning process. Additionally, the ASMP Street Network will be amended to include the sidewalk, shared street, and bicycle recommendations in those two plans.

TPWD will make the final drafts of the ASMP and the other plans available prior to City Council's public hearing.

Starting in the Fall of 2020, City staff worked together through the ATXWBR process to update the three active transportation plans.

The ATXWBR planning and public engagement process was centered in racial equity, defined as "the condition when race no longer predicts a person's quality of life outcomes in our community." Public engagement was carried out over three phases. Phase 1 included an Equity Scan through interviewing local leaders of historically underrepresented groups to find out how can outreach be improved and hear their concerns. Building on the Equity Scan, an Equity Framework was created using the City's definition of racial equity to guide how planning decisions would be made and how public engagement would be conducted with the community. During Phase 2, public engagement opportunities focused on where the trails, sidewalks, and bicycle systems get built and how projects get prioritized. The three draft plans were released for public comment in Phase 3 of the engagement process, which began in January 2023. In February and March of this year, the updated plans were presented at various Boards and Commissions meetings and at the Council Mobility Committee meeting to collect additional feedback. In April, the Planning Commission will provide its recommendations for the three plans and the ASMP.

The ATXWBR effort was supported by the Community Ambassador Program, which hires community members to collect feedback. Ambassadors collected feedback on how people get around Austin and how walking, biking, and rolling can be improved. Ambassadors primarily focused on gathering input from communities of color and other unrepresented groups in Austin to reach the planning efforts of the Equity Framework goals.
